Talk at the Capital About the Resignation of Mr. Hoar.

Amos T. Akerman, of Georgia, Appointed as His Successor.

Universal Surprise at the Choice.

Sketch of the Political Career of the Appointee.

Secret History of the Cuban Bond Business.

Speculations Regarding Mr. Hoar's Resignation—His Relations With the President—The Cuban Message—His Probable Successor—Sketch of the Career of Mr. Akerman.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The resignation of Attorney-General HOAR, and the appointment of his successor, have followed each other in such quick succession that the public appetite for speculation and gossip has had no time for indulgence. The resignation of Mr HOAR, which was tendered and accepted yesterday, was not generally known until a late hour this morning; and the appointment of Mr. ACKERMAN to fill the vacancy was not known until the nomination was sent to the Senate. The causes which are supposed to have led to Mr. HOAR's resignation are freely canvassed, but all that can be said with certainty on the subject is that the retirement of Mr. HOAR is voluntary, and in pursuance of an intention formed long since. It will be remembered that, at the time the Senate rejected Mr. HOAR's nomination for Supreme Judge, the story of his resignation as Attorney-General was immediately revived. Your correspondent had occasion then to deny the fact on sufficient authority, and the same authority, for stating that Mr. HOAR's retirement, while not true at that time, was simply a question of time, and not very remote time either. Events have fully verified that statement. The resignation, taken in connection with the existing status of the Cuban question, gives rise, of course, to much guessing and many surmises, very few of which have any foundation. Some people profess to be able to see that, because he was the author of the able message on Cuban affairs, he ought to have resigned, though the logic is not exactly apparent. The paternity of the paragraph about Cuban bonds, which has disturbed several members of Congress, is particularly ascribed to Mr. HOAR; and the impropriety of sending the message to Congress at such an inopportune time, which is the view held by some people, is laid at Mr. HOAR's door jointly with Mr. FISH. And so the current of comment runs. But one thing seems to be certain: the Cabinet is not in accord on leading questions of foreign policy, and there is no doubt of Gen. GRANT's desire and intention to improve the tone and temper of his Administration upon the matter of our relations with Spain. Of course there is no lack of reports that Mr. FISH is to resign immediately. But there is no foundation for that at present.

WHO IS MR. AKERMAN?

The appointment of Mr. AKERMAN, as I have intimated, was wholly unexpected. He is well known to the Southern people and to the Southern Bar; but to the mass of people at the North and to the mass of the Republican Party he is a stranger, as has been the case with every other Cabinet appointment. The people who trust and believe in the President must accept Mr. AKERMAN on the faith of the few who do know him, or wait until he indicates the fitness of the appointment, about which time will doubtless show, there is no question. Mr. AKERMAN was appointed and confirmed United States District-Attorney for the State of Georgia, some seven or eight months since, and has filled that post with much credit to himself. He was born in the State of New-Hampshire, and graduated at Dartmouth College. He then emigrated to Georgia, and studied law in the office of United States Senator J. MCPHERSON BERRIAN, who was Attorney-General under JACKSON, and is today considered one of the leading lawyers of the State, and, in fact, in the South. He was prominent as a candidate for the United States Supreme Court Judgeship. He is forty-six years of age, and has a wife and several children, residing at Elberton, Ga. His first political distinction was in the late Constitutional Convention of Georgia, where he made his first appearance in political life. He was the principal framer of the present State Constitution. He was subsequently the elector at large on the Grant and Colfax Presidential ticket. He was an earnest Union man during the war, and was known to JEFF. DAVIS, STEPHENS, TOOMBS, &c. He was one of the earliest and stanchest friends of equal and political rights to all men, and has been here several times before the President and Congressional Committees, as an earnest advocate for the admission of Georgia and its representation in Congress. There is no doubt but that the appointment is intended to hasten the settlement of the question of Georgia reconstruction.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16.—Both the President and Judge HOAR were much surprised today on learning that the fact of the latter's resignation of the office of Attorney-General was last night telegraphed North, especially as neither of them had mentioned the subject to any one, nor was it their intention to do so, excepting on the nomination of a successor. There is much speculation as to the causes of the resignation. It has no political significance. After the withdrawal of the nomination of Mr. A. T. STEWART to be Secretary of the Treasury, the President being desirous of appointing Mr. BOUTWELL to the vacancy, Judge HOAR informed the President that in order to avoid embarrassment in the appointment of two members of the Cabinet from the same State, he would withdraw from it, leaving the President free to select Mr. BOUTWELL. The President, however, remarked that that was a matter which more intimately concerned himself, and while thanking Judge HOAR for his friendly consideration appointed Mr. BOUTWELL, Secretary of the Treasury. Some months afterward, Judge HOAR again voluntarily proposed to resign, he never appearing to desire a continuance in the position, but was always ready to retire whenever the President should think proper to appoint his successor. The nomination of Judge HOAR to fill the vacancy on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States was from the most friendly feelings of the President toward him, which it is known were as sincerely returned by Judge HOAR, and these friendly relations have never been interrupted. When, recently, Judge HOAR tendered his resignation for the first time in writing the President accepted it, with the intimation that as the South had no Judge on the Supreme Court Bench it seemed fair that that section should have a representative in the Cabinet, and, therefore, inquiries were made as to a suitable successor. The ascertained qualifications of AMOS T. AKERMAN, of Georgia, being satisfactory, he was accordingly nominated today to the Senate. Toward the close of the proceedings of that body, this afternoon, an ineffectual motion was made to go into Executive session, in order that the nomination might be acted upon. This will probably be done to-morrow. The following correspondence passed between Judge HOAR and the President:

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15, 1870.

SIR: I resign the office of Attorney-General of the United States, the resignation to take effect upon the appointment and qualification of my successor. Very respectfully, E. R. HOAR.

To the President.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15, 1870.

MY DEAR JUDGE: In accepting your resignation as Attorney-General upon the appointment and qualification of your successor, I take the occasion to express to you my high appreciation of the able, patriotic and devoted manner in which you have performed the functions of that office. In no less a degree do I appreciate the pleasant personal relations which have existed from the beginning of our association officially in public place. Hoping that you will carry with you nothing but pleasant recollections of your connection with the present Administration, and with assurances of my personal esteem and friendship, I remain, with great respect, your friend and obedient servant, U. S. GRANT.

To HON. E. R. HOAR, Attorney-General.

Mr. AKERMAN has been telegraphed and is on his way to Washington.

Result of the San Domingo Inquiry—Failure of the Prosecution—The Cuban Bond Investigation—A Readable Affidavit—Action on the Cuban Question in the House—The Georgia Bill—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The San Domingo investigation has substantially fizzled out. The prosecution thus far has utterly failed to make out a case. Their principal witness, HATCH, has not appeared, and it is understood that he will not. PERRY was again on the stand today, and the examination virtually finished him. He became disorderly, and at one time attacked the veracity of Senator HOWARD, by making statements before the Committee which that gentleman was compelled to denounce as unmitigated falsehoods. The testimony thus far vindicates Gen. BABCOCK completely, and proves that the grievances complained of in HATCH's memorial never existed, save in the imagination of that gentleman.

THE CUBAN BONDS INVESTIGATION.

Judge POLAND's Special Committee today continued its investigation of the alleged libel upon Representative FITCH by the correspondent of the Evening Post. Mr. CUSHING filed Mr. SMITH's answer, in which he denies any improper intent in his publication, which he claimed was legitimate matter of news. He avers that he expressed no opinion as to their truthfulness, but simply gave the substance of certain papers which he saw. He also argues against the power of the Committee to compel him to divulge the sources of his information, and submits copies of the affidavits of Messrs. TAYLOR and DEWEESE, with the request that the Committee call upon Gen. BUTLER for their verification by comparison with those in his possession. The affidavit of N. B. TAYLOR details how he offered to contract with Mr. RUIZ to procure a recognition by the United States of the belligerency of the Cuban Republic for a million of dollars in bonds, and did so contract, though in the name of Col. PICKETT, who appeared as his attorney; and that by the terms of agreement the bonds were to be deposited with Don MANUEL FREYRE, the Peruvian Minister here, to be delivered upon its fulfillment. Having thus magnificently promised to hand the Government of the United States over to the Cuban Junta, he relates how he went to work to deliver it according to contract, as follows:

After these agreements were signed, I went to work to secure such influence as I could to obtain the recognition of the belligerency of the Republic of Cuba by the President. My first move was to make it appear that the popular feeling was in favor of such recognition; so I saw Mr. LATHAM, a law partner of Col. PICKETT, and told him to promise Cuban bonds inside of fifty thousand dollars in all, to the correspondents of the various newspapers at Washington, if they would write up the Cuban cause and advocate the early recognition of the belligerency of the Republic of Cuba. Mr. LATHAM afterward told me that he had promised certain of these bonds, but that it would be much better to pay actual money to the correspondents; or, if I could not do that, to obtain from Mr. RUIZ the release of some of the bonds, and give bonds directly and unconditionally to the correspondents.

He then gives an account of a journey to Chicago, as he says, to procure the aid of the President's brother, Mr. ORVILLE GRANT, to whom he promised large sums in bonds, and by whom, so far as appears, he was treated like a worthless or crazy adventurer. Failing to accomplish his task within the twenty days which he required when it was first undertaken, he says he procured extensions of time, and not getting along very well with the Administration he undertook Congress. The allusions to gentlemen of the House which gave rise to this investigation are as follows:

After that I went to work to induce members of Congress to vote in favor of the recognition of the belligerency of the Republic of Cuba, if the question should be brought before the Congress, and to induce them to vote in favor of the Republic of Cuba in all matters that should come up. I then saw Mr. DEWEESE, of North Carolina, Mr. BUTLER, of Tennessee, Mr. GOODLOE, of Kentucky, Mr. MCFORMICK, of Missouri, and Mr. FITCH, of Nevada, seeking to influence all personally, and seeking through some to influence others. I told them all, in effect, that if they would vote in favor of the recognition of the belligerent rights of the Republic of Cuba, if such a measure should be brought before Congress, and if they would vote for the interests of the Republic of Cuba whenever they had an opportunity, that I would give them a certain amount of the bonds of the Republic of Cuba if the belligerency of the Republic should be recognized. And to some of them I promised that I would give money in addition. I told them that I had a contract with Mr. RUIZ in the matter, and that Mr. RUIZ was the financial agent of the Republic of Cuba here and that the bonds were put up under contract and that all would be right, and that they would get their share.

It appears by his own statements that the shameless wretch was finally discredited by Mr. RUIZ; and he says that, failing at last to get either the money or bonds which he had been promised, he threw the case up in disgust. It seems that Mr. BUTLER wanted to get Mr. TAYLOR for cross-examination with reference to his statements, and that he fled to Canada to avoid it, whence he has recently telegraphed denying that he ever made them. The affidavit of DE WEESE corroborates that of TAYLOR, so far as the approaches and offers of bonds to himself are concerned; and they also agree with regard to the connection with the business of a well-known Washington physician, who seems to have finally obtained control of the bonds and negotiations for aid through Congressional action. It should be stated distinctly that there is nothing in either of these statements to show that these lobbyists obtained any recognition, encouragement nor even tolerance, from Mr. FITCH or any other member of Congress, or other persons of any influence or standing whatever.

ACTION ON THE CUBAN QUESTION.

The Cuban question was quietly disposed of in the House today by the adoption of Judge BINGHAM's substitute by seventeen majority. This is the end of the matter for this session, probably.

THE PORTER ASSAULT CASE.

The case of the assault on Congressman PORTER was continued in the House Judiciary Committee today, by the examination of some half dozen witnesses to prove the circumstances of the assault. In the meantime several serious complications are likely to grow out of this trifling matter. Notice was received today that the presence of WOODS was desired at Richmond as a witness in a case before one of the Courts there; and the Sergeant-at-Arms was directed to take him to Richmond, keep him in custody, and when he had testified, bring him back. It will be remembered that when WOODS was first arrested one of the State Courts at Richmond issued a writ of habeas corpus, which the United States Marshal refused to obey. He is now cited to appear and answer for contempt of Court. Judge BINGHAM has addressed a letter to the Attorney-General, requesting that the United States District-Attorney for Virginia be directed to appear for the Marshal.

SAN FRANCISCO HARBOR.

The House was chiefly occupied this afternoon by the consideration of the bill reported from the Pacific Railroad Committee granting the use of one-half of Goat Island, in San Francisco Harbor, to the Western Pacific Railroad for depot and station purposes. Hon. WM. A. WHEELER, the Chairman of the Committee, has thrown around this proposed grant such conditions and restrictions that the Government interests can in no wise suffer any detriment, but, on the contrary, will be largely benefited by the great additional facilities thereby afforded to the travel of the Pacific Roads, and the commerce of San Francisco Harbor, which now suffers an additional transhipment and expensive lighterage between the city and the railroad terminus at Oakland. One-half the island, or sixty-one acres, is permanently reserved for fortifications, with a proviso that the whole may be used for that purpose in time of war. The selection of the portion of the island to be occupied by the railroad is to be made by the President, and the construction of the trestlework by which the railroad approaches the island is to be under the direction of the Engineer Department. Mr. WHEELER's remarks today were a sufficient guarantee of the propriety and desirability of the measure.

THE GEORGIA BILL.

The Reconstruction Committee met today, and settled the difficulty about the Georgia bill, by agreeing that the subject should be reported by Gen. BUTLER to the House, with the statement that eight members of the Committee were for the Farnsworth bill, which does, and seven for BUTLER's, which does not, provide for an election in Georgia this Fall. It was further agreed that there should be ample opportunity allowed in the House for debate and amendment. It is not expected that the bill will be reported for some days to come.

INTERNATIONAL YACHT COURTESIES.

The Senate bill to facilitate international yacht courtesies, by removing certain Custom-house restrictions, upon condition that reciprocal privileges be extended to American yachts, was today authorized to be favorably reported by Mr. POTTER, from the House Committee on Commerce.

THE NATIONAL UNION LEAGUE.

The time of the meeting of the National Executive Committee of the Union League of America, at the St. Nicholas Hotel in New-York, has been changed to Tuesday, the 28th of June.

MADRID, June 16.—Great satisfaction is felt here at the message of President GRANT on the Cuban question....According to the provisions of the law lately enacted, 9,000 registers of civic marriages are to be opened by the middle of August.

ROME, June 16.—The Ecumenical Council will begin the discussion of the last chapter of the infallibility scheme today.

An Inheritance of £200,000—Claims of a New-York Girl Barred.

LONDON, June 16.—In the case of HILL vs. RIBBETTS, where the inheritance to the property of the late Mr. WHITE, of Yorkshire, amounting to £200,000, was claimed by a daughter born in New-York, the claim was barred by proofs of a valid Scotch marriage of deceased previous to his marriage in New-York.

Disasters to Vessels in Typhoons—The Earthquake at Yokohama.

LIVERPOOL, June 16.—Advices have been received here announcing that the bark Candah, Capt. KRYMAN, which sailed from Penang for New-York on the 12th of March, had recently arrived at St. Helena with masts sprung, where she was condemned.

BOMBAY, June 16.—Late dispatches from Hong Kong announce that several ships, which had been dismasted in a typhoon, have recently arrived there....A sharp shock of earthquake had occurred at Yokohama.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

Successful Revolution in Costa Rica—Other Disturbances—The Darien Survey—Chili, Bolivia and Peru—Earthquake near Iquique.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—A revolution in Costa Rica resulted, on the 27th of April, in the overthrow of the Jimmines Government. BRUNO CARRAZA was declared President. Five officers were killed and a number wounded in the conflict. A revolutionary attempt had been made in San Salvador and several of the revolutionists had been exiled. In Honduras numerous arrests of political offenders had been made, and fifty or sixty Nicaraguans were ordered to leave the Republic. The revolution was satisfactorily regarded throughout the country, all the provinces having declared their adherence to the new Government. The work of the Interoceanic Railway is progressing rapidly. Panama advices state that the party from the United States steamer Nyack, of the Darien Surveying Expedition, are expected to complete their work in June. The accounts from the expedition are not encouraging. The Secretary of the Supreme Court of New Grenada had been found guilty of forging Government bonds.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Advices from Chili state that a change in the Ministry was regarded as having an important political significance. The Bolivian Government has decided not to collect the six per cent. export duty on foreign money. Accounts from Peru represent that the prospects of the country are good. Money was plentiful. The Peruvian fleet, as reinforced, is the strongest of any of the South American Republics. Baron PETZ, the Austrian Envoy, had completed a treaty of commerce, navigation and friendship with Peru, and had sailed for Valparaiso. An earthquake near Iquique, Southern Peru, demolished several houses and involved some loss of life.

CUBA AND PORTO RICO.

Military Matters—Three Mysterious Prisoners—The Government of Porto Rico.

HAVANA, June 14, via LAKE CITY, Fla., June 16.—Gen. MERELO has assumed command of Santiago de Cuba. The three gentlemen taken prisoners a few days ago on Cayo Cruze, left Nassau last February for the Cuban coast. They had not been heard of up to the time of their capture, and were falsely reported to have been slain by their crew. There is no doubt they have important relations with the rebel leaders....Gen. BALDRICH has been placed in charge of the Government of Porto Rico.

Execution of Two of the Mysterious Prisoners—Clemency of the Captain-General.

HAVANA, June 16.—GUITERAS and PERALTA, two of the men captured on Cayo Cruze, have been executed at Puerto Principe, and the third, CAMINO, has been sentenced to ten years' confinement in the Penitentiary. Col AGUILA's column, operating in the direction of Najaza, have taken a number of prisoners, and killed twenty-six rebels. The Captain-General, on his birthday, pardoned a soldier who had been sentenced to death, and liberated twenty-seven rebel prisoners, most of them negroes. The insurgent leader, SANGUILI, has been wounded, and AUGUSTIN AGUILAR, an insurgent Prefect, has been killed.

MEXICO.

The Revolutionists Dispersed—The Recent Earthquake—Churches and Dwellings Leveled to the Ground.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 11, via HAVANA, June 16.—The National Congress adjourned on the 31st of May. President JUAREZ, in his closing message, says the revolutionists in San Luis Potosi and Zacatecas have been reduced to petty bands, and that measures have been taken by the Government, in cooperation with Congress, which will prove of great benefit to the country in the future. The earthquake of the 11th of May, reported in a previous dispatch, was felt at Tabasco. All the churches and nearly all the private dwellings at Miahutla were thrown to the ground by the shock. Near Pochulta the roads were rendered impassable; rocks fell from the mountain sides and filled them up. The loss of life in this calamity is larger than was at first estimated. The revolt at Guaymas has been quelled. New gold mines have been discovered near Jalapa. A society of free-thinkers on the 3d inst. celebrated the memory of MELCHOR OCAMPO, who was killed by the Church party in 1861.... The Two Republics (newspaper) defends the policy and reputation of Señor ROMERO....The Governor of the State of Guerrero has been impeached....Much excitement is apparent here among the Government people in consequence of the progress of the Rio Grande rebels.... A conducta of $2,500,000 left this city for Vera Cruz to catch the English steamer. The wreck of the steam-ship Golden City has been sold. The Custom-house at Masatlan has embargoed the property of HENRY BROOKS, an American, who refuses to pay exorbitant port duties. It is reported that PLACIDO VEGA attempted to attack ROSARIO, but was defeated and compelled to take to flight. A rumor is afloat that Gen. NEGRETE will join the Rio Grande rebels. ONOFRE CASTILLO, a Catholic priest of this city, has married Señora FUENTES. The Catholics are extremely indignant at the step.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

The Iowa Convention—A Female Lawyer Presiding—Strong Resolutions.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa, June 16.—The Iowa Woman's Suffrage Convention met in this city today. There was a large attendance, all parts of the State being represented. Mrs. BELLE MANSFIELD, the first woman admitted to the Bar in the West, was made permanent President, with a long list of Vice-Presidents, and Secretaries. A State organization was formed, a Constitution adopted similar to that of the National Union Woman Suffrage Society, and Gen. O'CONNOR, Vice-President of the Union, elected President, with a full list of Vice-Presidents from different sections of the State. Strong resolutions were adopted. Among the prominent advocates of the cause present from this State, are Mrs. DORWIN, of Burlington; Mrs. ADAMS, of Dubuque; Mrs. BLOOME, of Council Bluffs, and Mrs. SAVERY, of Des Moines. The Union Woman Suffrage Society is represented by E. A. STUDWELL, Chairman of its Executive Committee and publisher of The Revolution; Mrs. TRACY COULTER, of Ohio, and President of the Association of that State, was present, representing the American Society of Boston. A large mass meeting was held this evening. The Convention will meet again to morrow.

Fire in Springfield, Mass.—Loss About $70,000.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 16.—Wight's block, 11 Taylor-street, was damaged by fire tonight to the amount of $10,000. The fire caught in the foundry of the Bay State Valve and Faucet Company, who lose $15,000. The Morgan Envelope Company, who occupied the basement and first floor, lose $25,000 by water. The other stocks damaged by water and removal are those of E. STEBBINS, jobbing wood-worker; A. V. BURNHAM, picture frames and moldings; RISSELL BROTHERS, machine shop, and J. E. GILLESPIE, water-wheel regulators. Total loss, $70,000.

SHOCKING RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A Train Breaks Through a Bridge in Vermont—Three Persons Killed and Many Wounded.

BOSTON, June 16.—A special dispatch to the Journal reports the occurrence of a fearful accident on the Vermont and Massachusetts Railroad, between Royalston and Athol, today. A train going West broke through a bridge. Mr. JOHNSON, of Fitchburg, the "pop-corn-man," and two others, were killed. Among the injured are the following: John Murphy, Wm. Elliott, baggage-master, and Jones, the fireman, seriously wounded; A. C. Doolittle, of Gardner, leg broken; A. S. Whitcomb, mail-agent, seriously wounded; Miss L. L. Bullock, of Royalston, injured in the head; Wm. Foster, engineer, injured in the head; Master Theo. Jones, head slightly injured; P. S. Young, Nettie Whittaker, Alice B. Mather and Mrs. Sally Fish, slight wounds; Mrs. Chas. Deane, slightly injured; Angeline Laters, slight injuries; Hattie King and infant, both injured in the face. Mr. R. W. WATERMAN, while assisting at the wreck, was injured in the leg. Surgeons have arrived, and every attention is being shown the wounded. The engine and three cars are a wreck.

ANOTHER LIST OF CASUALTIES.

Those killed outright were as follows: Mrs. ALMON BREWER, GEO. A. JOHNSON, of Fitchburg, and JAS. O'CONNELL. The following list comprises most of those dangerously wounded: JOHN MURPHY, of Lowell, cut in the leg and face and injured internally, so that recovery is impossible; Mrs. HATTIE KING and a small infant, both badly bruised; WM. ELLIOTT, of Fitchburg, baggage-master, shoulder broke and otherwise badly bruised, probably fatally; E. O. BRITTEN, of Fitchburg, road-master, back bruised and hip broken; A. S. WHITCOMB, of Fitchburg, mail agent, back bruised and serious internal injuries, which will prove fatal; W. A. FOSTER, of Fitchburg, engineer, knee severely bruised and hip cut; H. M. JONES, fireman, arm broken in two places and head badly bruised; he will probably not recover; A. H. Blackwell, cut over the eye and head jammed; George Howard, fatal fracture of the skull; Lucy Bullock, of Royalston, bruised in the head and face; Jennie Bruce, badly bruised; Mrs. James Turner, of Royalston, leg broken and otherwise bruised, probably fatally; A. E. Doolittle, leg broken; Byron E. Bartlett, bruised in the face badly; a child of Jerome Jones, slightly injured; Mrs. Charles Dean, Sunderland, face badly bruised: Mrs. Young, of Boston, head and chest badly bruised; Mrs. Ellis Bullock, slightly injured; Mr. Field, of Taunton, leg broken.

Railroad Accident.

CINCINNATI, June 16.—A freight-train on the Louisville Short Line Railway, today, ran into a hand car near Maurice Station, instantly killing JAMES DUGAN.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

Great Frauds in the Subsidy Election in San Francisco—Steam to Australia—The Southern Coast Road.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—The Board of Supervisors today declared the result of the recent election, on the proposition to donate $1,000,000 to the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, in favor of the Company, although the conviction was expressed that a great fraud had been perpetrated in order to carry the vote affirmatively.

A new Australian steam-ship Company for direct communication with Sidney, has been organized. The service will be commenced on or before the 10th of July. It is expected the steamers will make the time in twenty-one days.

Another large package of petitions, asking Congress to aid the California Southern Coast Railroad, was forwarded to Gen. ROSECRANS today. The petitions are signed by over 10,000 names. The line of the proposed road is from San Francisco to San Diego, through the coast counties.

Anxiety Over the Steamer Henry Chauncey—The Railroad Subsidy Frauds—Advance in Grain.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—Much anxiety is manifested here at the non-arrival of the steam-ship Henry Chauncey at New-York. The steamer Constitution, with which she was to connect, was spoken June 1 a few hours from Panama....There is great indignation expressed at the gross frauds in the recent special election. The Mayor has been requested to offer a reward for the perpetrators of the frauds....Wheat has advanced under the favorable Eastern and European advices. The California wheat exported during one year up to date required 200 vessels. Two hundred and thirty-six thousand tons were sent to England.

THE EAST.

Boston, Hartford and Erie Railway Aid—College Scrip Land in Maine—A Schooner Run Down in a Fog—A Bark Sunk.

BOSTON, June 16.—The Boston, Hartford and Erie Aid bill passed the Senate to engrossment, yesterday, by 22 to 14, with some important modifications, which provide for the completion of the road to Willimantic; for a new election of directors within three months, and for the prosecution of the work on the South Boston flats. Under the existing contract, or the new contract to be approved by the Governor and Council, a new amendment was also adopted, providing that the Berdell bonds, deposited as security for the scrip yet to be issued, shall not be exchanged for second mortgage bonds.

PORTLAND, Me., June 16.—One hundred and sixty-five acres of the Agricultural College land scrip, issued to Maine, was sold yesterday to G. F. LEWIS, of Cleveland, Ohio; for $13,700.

BANGOR, Me., June 16.—The steamer Cambridge, in a dense fog, off Monhegan, yesterday morning, ran into and sunk the schooner Susan Ross, HERRICK, master, of Brooklyn, from Boston, in ballast. The crew escaped in a boat, and were picked up by the Cambridge. The latter was not damaged.....Hon. JOHN A. PETERS was unanimously nominated for re-election by the Fourth Congressional District Republican Committee today.

NEW-BEDFORD, Mass., June 16.—The bark Philena, of Portland, Capt. ROSE, from Hoboken for Portland, with a cargo of coal, struck on the "Old Man," between Nomans Land and Greyhead, in a thick fog, Monday forenoon, and fell off and sunk in six fathoms of water. The Captain and crew have arrived at Edgartown.

Postponement of the Temperance Convention in Maine—Election of New-Hampshire State Officers.

LEWISTON, Me., June 16.—The State Temperance Executive Committee met at Auburn, to-night, and voted that the State Convention, called to meet to-morrow at Auburn Hall, be indefinitely postponed, the action of the Republican State Convention being deemed satisfactory to the friends of temperance. It is expected the supporters of Mr. HICHBORN for Governor, last year, will, almost to a man, support Mr. PERHAM, the Republican nominee for Governor.

CONCORD, N. H., June 16.—In the Legislature, this afternoon, NATHAN W. GOVE, of Concord, was elected Secretary of State; PETER SANBORN, of Concord, State Treasurer; and ORRIN C. MOORE, of Nashua, State Printer.

Niagara Ship Canal—Election of Officers.

NIAGARA, Ontario, June 16.—A meeting of the provisional directors of the Erie and Ontario Ship Canal was held here yesterday. G. P. DODGE, of New-York, was elected President; ANGUS MORRISON, of Toronto, Vice-President, and WALTER SHANLY, Engineer. The President subscribed to $100,000 of stock, and other subscriptions were announced. A good deal of enthusiasm in the project was manifested.

THE WEST.

Republican Nominations for Congress—St. Louis Water Bonds—McCoole in Training—New-Mexico Matters.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 16.—The Republicans of the Second District have nominated Col. GEO. W. CARR, of Jackson County, and the Republicans of the Sixth District have nominated MOSES J. DUNN, of Lawrence County, for Congress.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 16.—The Republican Convention of the First Congressional District met at Princeton, today, and nominated Capt. H. C. GOODSING, of Evansville, for Congress, on the fourth ballot.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 16.—Hon. CHAS. HITCHCOCK, of this city, was today nominated as the Republican candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court for the Seventh District, under the new Constitution. Mr. HITCHCOCK was President of the late Constitutional Convention. The election takes place on the 2d of July.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 16.—The tannery of RUFF & CO., on Platte-avenue and Eleventh-street, was burned this morning. The loss is $13,000; insured in St. Louis offices for $8,000.

The bids for $450,000 of the St. Louis Water Works bonds were opened in the Mayor's office yesterday, and the whole amount was awarded to the National Bank of the State of Missouri at 92½.

MCCOOLE will commence training for his fight with ALLEN, on Monday, at the Abbey Race track. His trainers are "Dublin Tricks," JAS. NEALLY and JOE COBURN.

SANTA FE, New-Mexico, June 16.—A new paper, the Post, issued its first daily here this morning. It is a twenty-columns sheet, and favors a protective tarif....A special dispatch to the Post from Fort Stanton, reports the killing of two Mexicans by Indians near that place. The mountains are said to be full of hostile Indians, and serious trouble is apprehended.

CINCINNATI, June 16.—The grand concert of the Saengerfest was inaugurated, to-night, with great success. The audience was immense, every seat and inch of standing room being occupied. The managers are now convinced that they built the house too small in the vicinity of the stage. It is estimated that 15,000 persons were present.

Indian Outrages in Nebraska—Cavalry in Pursuit of the Savages.

FORT MCPHERSON, Neb., June 16.—A party of Indians suddenly appeared at Cottonwood Springs, near Burk's Ranche, about two miles west of this post, this morning, and wounded a citizen who was herding cattle for Mr. WAIT, a beef contractor. A party of about one hundred Indians also appeared at the same time at the mouth of Morrow's Cañon, seven miles West of here. Two companies of cavalry from this post are in close pursuit. They will probably return to-morrow, when full particulars will be learned.

THE SOUTH.

The Reform Movement in South Carolina—A Platform—Nomination of a State Ticket—Florida Railroad Bonds.

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 16.—A Convention of citizens of South Carolina of all parties and colors assembled in Columbia last evening, with a view of inaugurating a new party movement to secure reform in the administration of the State Government. About four-fifths of the counties of the State were represented. Several remarkable speeches from delegates of both colors were made, the burden of which was the necessity of union of all good citizens of every class to obtain in the Fall election an honest and economical State Government. It was resolved to conduct the canvass under the name of the Union Reform Party, and the following platform was adopted unanimously:

This Convention, representing the citizens of South Carolina, irrespective of party, assembled to organize the good people of this State in an effort to reform the present incompetent, extravagant, prejudiced and corrupt administration of the State Government, and to establish, instead thereof, just and equal laws, order and harmony, economy in the public expenditures, a strict accountability of office-holders, and the election to office of men of known honesty and integrity, duly declare and announce the following principles upon which men of all parties may unite for the purposes aforesaid:

First, The Fifteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States having been by the proper authorities proclaimed ratified by the requisite number of States, and having been received and acquiesced in as a law in all the States of the Union, ought to be faithfully administered and freely obeyed as a fundamental law.

Second, That vast changes in our system of Government, wrought by the war between the two sections of the States, and following in its train, are so far incorporated into the institutions and laws of the States and United States as to require that they be regarded as accomplished facts, having the force and obligation of law.

Third. This solemn and complete recognition of the existing laws brings the people of South Carolina into entire harmony upon all questions of civil and political right, and should unite all honest men in an earnest and determined effort to establish a just, equal and faithful administration of the Government in the interest of no class or clique, but for the benefit of a united people.

On the first ballot today Judge R. B. CARPENTER, a Republican and an ex-officer of the Union army, was nominated for Governor, and Gen. M. C. BUTLER, a prominent Ex-Confederate, for Lieutenant-Governor. The Convention adjourned to-night, after providing for the appointment of an Executive Committee, &c. The campaign promises to be active and exciting.

State Canal Tolls—Rates to be Reduced—Action of the Board.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 16.—At a meeting of the Canal Board, held at the Canal Department on the 16th inst., the following was adopted, to wit:

Resolved, That on and after the 20th day of June, 1870, car-axles, boiler-iron and steel in bars and bundles, and all articles exclusively manufactured of wrought or rolled iron not specifically enumerated in the toll sheet, when cleared at tide-water, be charged at the rate of one-half of one mill toll per thousand pounds per mile.

Horses to be Given to Red Cloud.

The Government authorities have decided to comply with the request made by RED CLOUD recently for horses to carry his party home from the terminus of the railroad, and so notified him by telegraph. His reply received from New-York, informs the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, that the intelligence has made his heart very big, and that he is now very glad and grateful.

The Income Tax—Action of the Union League Club.

The Union League Club held a special meeting last evening, to take action on the resolutions regarding the revision of the income tax list. It was largely attended. The following are the resolutions adopted. All but the last are as reported from the Committee. The last was subsequently offered by Dr. LIEBER, and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Club the best interests of the people require a careful revision of the National Tax list, an equalization of taxation, and a reduction of taxes to the lowest point consistent with the preservation of the public faith.

Resolved, That the act of Congress providing that the Income tax "shall be levied until and including 1870, and no longer," is in a solemn compact with the people, which good faith requires should be sacredly observed.

Resolved, That in this country labor can in no sense be considered capital subject to taxation, and that there is now no imminent peril to the public credit requiring that salaries, wages, and labor in its various forms shall be subjected to onerous, discriminating, and inquisitorial legislation.

Resolved, That an income tax, as embodied in the bill which recently passed the House of Representatives, upon income derived from profits of capital in trade or business, or in the form of invested property, and levied solely upon income above a line of exemption which in fact exempts more than four-fifths of the income of the same class of accumulated wealth as is subject to the tax, and which will be imposed upon less than 100,000 persons, is an act of arbitrary exaction, violating the great and fundamental principle of equality of all before the law, driven into a very little island, and we want you, our dear friends, to help us with the Government of the United States. The Great Spirit made us poor and ignorant. He made you rich and wise and skillful in things which we know nothing about. The good Father made you to eat tame game and us to eat wild game. Ask any one who has gone through to California. They will tell you we have treated them well. You have children. We, too, have children, and we wish to bring them up well. We ask you to help us do it. At the mouth of Horse Creek, in 1852, the Great Father made a treaty with us. We agreed to let him pass through our territory unharmed for fifty-five years. We kept our word. We committed no murders, no depredations, until the troops came there. When the troops were sent there trouble and disturbance arose. Since that time there have been various goods sent from time to time to us, but only once did they reach us, and soon the Great Father took away the only good man he had sent us, Col. FITZPATRICK. The Great Father said we must go to farming, and some of our men were so farming near Fort Laramie, and were treated very badly indeed. We came to Washington to see our Great Father that peace might be continued. The Great Father that made us both wishes peace to be kept; we want to keep peace. Will you help us? In 1868 men came out and brought papers. We could not read them, and they did not tell us truly what was in them. We thought the treaty was to remove the forts, and that we should then cease from fighting. But they wanted to send us traders on the Missouri. We did not want to go on the Missouri, but wanted traders where we were. When I reached Washington the Great Father explained to me that the treaty was and showed me that the interpreters had deceived me. All I want is right and justice. I have tried to get from the Great Father what is right and just. I have not altogether succeeded. I want you to help me to get what is right and just. I represent the whole Sioux nation, and they will be bound by what I say. I am no SPOTTED TAIL, to say one thing one day and be bought for a pin the next. Look at me. I am poor and naked, but I am the Chief of the nation. We do not want riches, but we want to train our children right. Riches would do us no good. We could not take them with us to the other world. We do not want riches, we want peace and love.

The riches that we have in this world, Secretary Cox said truly, we cannot take with us to the next world. Then I wish to know why Commissioners are sent out to us who do nothing but rob us and get the riches of this world away from us? I was brought up among the traders, and those who came out there in the early times treated me well and I had a good time with them. They taught us to wear clothes and to use tobacco and ammunition. But, by and by, the Great Father sent out a different kind of men; men who cheated and drank whisky; men who were so bad that the Great Father could not keep them at home and so sent them out there. I have sent a great many words to the Great Father but they never reached him. They were drowned on the way, and I was afraid the words I spoke lately to the Great Father would not reach you, so I came to speak to you myself; and now I am going away to my home. I want to have men sent out to my people whom we know and can trust. I am glad I have come here. You belong in the East and I belong in the West, and I am glad I have come here and that we could understand one another. I am very much obliged to you for listening to me. I go home this afternoon. I hope you will think of what I have said to you. I bid you all an affectionate farewell.

When the prolonged applause with which this speech was greeted had subsided, Dr. CROSBY said: "You have heard from the great warrior Chief RED CLOUD. I now introduce to you the friator Chief RED DOG."

RED DOG'S SPEECH.

RED DOG, who is a short, thick-set Indian, with a broad, open face and a pair of cogged wheels in his swarthy ears, spoke briefly as follows:

I have but a few words to say to you, my friends. When the good Great Spirit raised us, he raised us with good men for counsels, and he raised you with good men for counsels. But yours are all the time getting bad, while ours remain good. These are my young men. I am their Chief. Look among them and see if you can find one who is a rich man. They are all poor because they are all honest. Whenever I call my young men together in counsel, they all listen to what I say. Now you have come together in counsel, I want you and your children to listen to what I say. When the Great Father first sent out men to our people, I was poor and thin; now I am large and stout and fat. It is because so many liars have been sent out there, and I have been stuffed full with their lies. I know all of you to be men of sense and men of respect, and I therefore ask you confidently to see that when men are sent out to our country, they shall be right men and just men, and will not do us harm. I don't want any more men sent out there who are so poor that they think only of filling their pockets. We want those who will help to protect us on our reservations, and save us from those who are viciously disposed toward us.

REV. DR. WASHBURNE'S REMARKS.

After the speech of RED DOG was finished, Rev. Dr. WASHBURNE, of the Indian Commission, was introduced. He asked what response this vast assembly of the people of New-York would make to the appeal of these Indian Chiefs. They had not been invited there to gratify an idle curiosity by allowing an opportunity of gazing upon these dusky children of the forest in their blankets and their moccasins. They were a savage race, unlike us in their modes of life, but who that had heard their words could doubt that they were men endowed with all the noblest feelings of manhood? They had a strong love for their families and for their people. The question of the treatment of these people was now pressing upon our attention. Hitherto it had seemed somewhat remote, but now it is the great question before the country. Soon all the lands of the country will be occupied to a greater or less extent by white men. How, then, shall the original possessors of the soil be treated? Shall we wage against them a war of extermination? (Loud cries of "No, no.") Let the interpreters tell these Chiefs, continued the speaker, that this great audience, representing the people of New-York and the people of the country, say that there shall be no war of extermination, but justice and peace. [This sentiment was interpreted to the Chiefs, and received with expressions of satisfaction.]

The speaker continued by saying that the Indian question was a difficult one. He did not understand all its diplomatic complications, but one policy there was which overrides all others, and which is simple and easy in its application. That policy must be applied to this question. It was the policy of simple Christian justice. Treat these men as men. Give those who can be induced to accept the customs and habits of civilized life, reservations of land, and afford them the means of cultivating the industrial arts and of acquiring education, and on those reservations and in the enjoyment of the institutions thus afforded them, give them the protection of the Government. If there are any who have not the capacity for civilization, still give them justice and fair treatment. The policy of the Government heretofore had been the policy of neglect, followed by the policy of violence. The Indians have been left in the hands of land sharks to be deceived, cheated and abused, and when they, in their rude conceptions of justice, have resorted to warfare as their only means of redress, they have been treated with severity. Under the present Administration there had been hope of better days for the Indians. President GRANT had foreshadowed a policy of peace and justice, and in his efforts and wishes he had been seconded by his large-hearted Secretary of the Interior; but the hopes which had been raised in the friends of the red man had been of late somewhat overclouded. This meeting was called to demand the inauguration of a new policy, and the Administration should be made to feel that the people of this country were beginning to take an interest in this subject, and that they were determined that there should be a new condition of things.

REV. DR. BELLOWS' REMARKS.

Rev. Dr. BELLOWS was next introduced, and said that the red men showed that they had the same sensibilities and the same feelings which white men have. They know when they are wronged, and demand redress. If, when the scales were held between the justice of the Indian and the white man, it preponderated in favor of the former, where was the value of our Christianity and our civilization? The Indian should be made to understand that the Pacific Railroad, which he regards as his enemy, is indeed his greatest friend, since it brings his treatment nearer to the knowledge of the people, so that they will know what is done among them and require the Government to correct abuses. Tell them we cannot take the ruffians who cheat them by the throat, but we can take the Government by the throat and force it to do right, and not allow the Indian to be trodden upon any longer. The great people of New-York should say to the Government that there must be no more of this cheating and lying. Let us have no more Indian orators stuffed with our lies. Secretary COX meant well by the Indians. He told them just what he could do, and what he could not do, and that was far better than making promises which he could not fulfill. The Indians were a doomed race. Before our children's children can look upon their faces, in all probability they will have faded from the earth. Their history has afforded the material for the only national novels which we have, and for some of our best poetry. While this remnant of the race remains they should surely receive fair treatment at our hands. Let their affairs be no longer hid away in a secret bureau, but let us know everything that is done, and require that nothing shall be done but justice and right.

At this point Mr. COOPER announced that before the letter which he had written to Wasnington, offering to furnish the seventeen horses asked for by RED CLOUD, had reached its destination, the authorities there had already given orders that the horses be supplied at the expense of the Government.

JUDGE DALY'S REMARKS.

Judge DALY was then introduced, and remarked that this was the first time there had been so great a council of white men and Indians, and it was well that it should take place at the great Metropolis of the country. The only thing he had to say now was to call to mind a remark which he heard made by one who had no superior in his knowledge of the Indian character and of our relations with that race—old Gov. HOUSTON, of Texas. He said that in every instance of a contest with the Indians which he had ever known the white men had been the aggressor. Judge DALY closed his remarks with an appeal that the experience of the past fifty years be no longer continued in the treatment of these men, and that if ever again their chiefs should meet the people of New-York in a great council, it should be to express their gratitude, and not to set forth their grievances.

At the close of Judge DALY'S remarks, Dr. GRENVILLE M. WEEKS explained the leading points of the plan for the settlement of the Indian question which has been prepared on behalf of the Indian Commission, and his remarks were interpreted to the Chiefs. The meeting then adjourned, and there was a general rush for the stage, the people being eager to get a nearer view of the distinguished aborigines. With considerable difficulty the crowd was induced to leave the hall in the usual way, and, in the meantime, the Indians were quickly and rapidly conducted to their carriages and driven away, amid the shouts and hurrahs of the populace.

Early in the afternoon they took their departure from the City, and will make no further stop until they reach Omaha, where the seventeen horses will await them to take them to their homes on the distant plains.

THE PLAN OF THE INDIAN COMMISSION.

The Committee of the Indian Commission, appointed at the recent Convention in this City to prepare a plan for the settlement of all our Indian difficulties, consisting of Peter Cooper, Grenville M. Weeks, Cornelius Du Bois, Lewis Masquerier, Rev. E. L. Janes, Col. C. N. Vann and E. W. Perryman, the two latter belonging to the Cherokee Legation, have prepared a small pamphlet, addressed to Hon. J. D. COX, Secretary of the Interior, in which, after reciting the facts with regard to the past treatment of the Indians and their character and capabilities, they submit the outline of their plan in twenty-six articles, "drawn up for presentation to Congress." The material features of the scheme are: The concentration of all the tribes west and north of the Mississippi on not less than four nor more than seven reservations, allowing about eighty acres of good land to each individual, due regard being had to the relations of the different tribes in locating them; no white men to be allowed to locate on the reservation except those who are sent to benefit the Indians, and those to be married and of "well attested philanthropic proclivities" and "Christian character," and when railroads are built through these lands, only such stations to be established as are necessary, and no white settlements to be allowed near them; men to be sent and money employed to civilize the Indians and built up industries and educational institutions among them; and all necessary means to be used to protect the reservations and their occupants in all the rights, titles and interest guaranteed to them under this arrangment.

Senator REVELS has a brother living in Nashville, Tenn., who was educated by the American Colonization Society as a physician, the intention being that he should go to Liberia. The war broke out and he did not leave the United States, but, with commendable spirit, he went to work and paid back every cent that had been expended by the Society on his education.

The Baltimore American gives an account of some magnificent charities contemplated by JOHN HOPKINS, an esteemed citizen of Baltimore. A university, a hospital, free to all without respect to race or color, and an asylum for colored-orphan children are the institutions that he intends to make the objects of his benevolence. The amount which Mr. HOPKINS intends to expend in the building and endowment of these institutions will be several millions of dollars.

The Pittsburg (Penn.) Gazette is anxious that the whole world should know that the people of that city, in their successful devotion to practical art, are neither ignorant nor careless of the claims of elegant letters; and it says that right there, in that "hive of operative industry, where labor is fitly exalted to the honors of a crown, literature and the purely intellectual arts are worshiped with an æsthetic warmth of appreciation which is exceeded in no other business community on this continent."

The Vermont Constitutional Convention adjourned sine die on Tuesday, after a session of only six days. But they worked six days. It changed the sessions of the Legislature from annual to biennial, rejected the article prohibiting special legislation, refused to give the Legislature power to fill vacancy in its own body, and refused to give the Governor power to appoint Supreme Court Judges, abolished the Council of Censors, and buried woman's suffrage so deep that, if it ever springs to life again, it is more likely to sprout up in China than in the Green Mountain State.

Hon. SAMUEL P. MORRILL, Congressman from the Second District of Maine, has published a card denying a report that he is not a candidate for renomination, and saying that whereas it is generally conceded that the usages of the party and fair dealing will give him the nomination, and whereas he believes in the humanity, honesty and integrity of the party generally, he is a candidate and will remain a candidate until the decision of the Convention is made known. Mr. MORRILL evidently intends that every one shall know where he stands on that point.

The Board of State Canvassers met in Albany on Wednesday, and declared the result of the late Judicial election as follows: For Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, Sanford E. Church received 289,890; Henry R. Selden, 151,978; Church's majority, 87,912. For Associate Judges, William F. Allen had 289,178; Martin Grover, 238,516; Rufus W. Peckham, 236,685; Charles A. Rapallo, 235,994; Charles J. Folger, 154,980; Charles Andrews, 154,094; Charles Mason, 152,906; Robert S. Hale, 150,862. The Board declared the six first-named elected, which includes Messrs. Folger and Andrews.

Some local improvement having been defeated at a recent election in Mobile, the Register complains of the place as a one-horse town, and says: "Improvement, progress and civilization have suffered another defeat at the hands of the do-nothings, who have for thirty years kept this city under the ban of selfishness and sloth. We have been waiting and working for it for a quarter of a century, and all that time fighting the incubus spirit that has weighed down its growth in population and commerce. We owe it a grudge for a wasted life, and for years of unrequited toil."

The remains of WILLIAM GILMORE SIMMS were buried in Magnolia Cemetery, Charleston, S. C., on Monday afternoon, in a corner of the plot given for a monument to JOHN C. CALHOUN. He said before his death that he wished no one to officiate as his pall-bearer who did not love him and whom he did not love, and consequently only his intimate friends officiated in this capacity, as follows: R. S. Bruns, W. J. Gayer, W. Y. Leitch, S. Lord, B. F. Evans, L. Chapin, Geo. W. Williams, L. Robertson, B. F. Duncan, W. D. Porter, E. Peyre Porcher and R. Geddings.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says that the Red Stockings were fairly beaten by the Atlantics. The Gazette thinks the fact of the matter is, that the nine was outplayed, though, of course, every loyal Cincinnatian will cherish the proud thought that if the Red Stockings had not been a little fagged out by their two weeks' series of labors, they would have made the nine victorious Atlantics feel like beaten Pacifics. And the Commercial fears that the Red Stockings, after their easy and complete victory over the Mutuals, were a little too confident, and that perhaps there was a relaxation of discipline. The Commercial adds that the news of the defeat was received there with surprise, and the surprise was not of an agreeable character.

Speaking of Hon. THOMAS D. ELIOT, who died in New-Bedford, Mass., on Tuesday, the Mercury, of that city, says: "Mr. ELIOT was among those who at one time were decried as 'Conscience Whigs,' but to him the term was an honor. He was a good man, pure-minded, kind-hearted, of sterling integrity, and of a most catholic spirit. In our unreserved intercourse with him, we can recall no instance where he indulged in any unkind, uncharitable or disparaging remarks about even those who had maligned him. He was a generous man, prompt to give to every good object, and foremost in his contributions of money or of labor to sustain all benevolent enterprises. Better than any triumph at the Bar, or the highest honors won in political life, is the simple record of his unselfish, Christian life. He rests from his labors, and his works do follow him."

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

Further Facts in Connection with the Upton Expedition—A Hard Story of Suffering—Cubans Quarreling—The Eastern Department—Seizure by Creditors—The Mary Lowde Case.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, June 11, 1870.

Further particulars of the Upton expedition have reached Havana, and they demonstrate that a great deal of carelessness and neglect was observed by the leaders of the expedition. The sworn depositions of three members of the expedition, whose love of life undoubtedly caused them to be so prolific, their declarations filling several closely-printed columns, has shown the manner in which these expeditions are organized, a display proving that only good luck, and not talent, has ever enabled the Cubans to land either men or arms. The first declaration is signed by LUIS MEDAL. As the documents are very lengthy, I shall limit myself to making extracts. Mr. MEDAL begins by stating that he wishes it to be remembered that he was taken unarmed with five companions, that it was his intention to surrender, and that owing to his sickness since landing his companions had abandoned him. The landing was effected on the night of the 23d, the steamer leaving in the morning and returning on the succeeding night, but still without being able to discharge all her cargo. The men landing being commanded by GASPAR BETANCOURT. All were busily engaged in hiding the landed arms and ammunition on the beach. On the 26th a Spanish gun-boat appeared off the beach, and sent some men ashore, who, I understand, were driven back. Col. BETANCOURT then gave the order to leave, abandoning seven or eight sick persons. MEDAL says he and his associates tried to see if they could find some troops to whom they could surrender, and on the afternoon of the 28th they met four men on horseback, to whom they told their story, and who brought them near the spot where the fourth company of artillery battalion was encamped. The men on horseback then turned and ran, the troops firing on them and advancing, which resulted in the taking of some and the killing of CARLOS ALVAREZ. On the 29th, MEDAL and company left with the column and arrived on the beach, where the landing had been effected on the afternoon of the same day, when their companions BENAVIDES, the brothers FUSTO and PEDRO APARNIO, and the colored man JOSE VALDES were executed. On the 30th a quantity of the disembarked goods was found, and on the 31st MEDAL went as a prisoner aboard the gunboat Ero, together with JOSE YSIDRO FERNANDEZ and TOMAS ALMEYDA, also of the Upton expedition. MEDAL also wishes to state that two more expeditions are to be undertaken within a short time, one from Colombia commanded by LONO, and the other commanded by QUESADA; the latter is said to be due in a steamer armed as a man-of-war, and the former by the Upton. And now Mr. MEDAL makes some serious charges, beginning with a statement that this phantom of a lying liberty (Cuban liberty) is created by a club of men without faith or conscience, and by them forced upon weak and sickly minds; also, that it would be difficult to make the people understand at once that the so-called Junta of Cuba and Porto Rico (New-York Junta) is only a society of assassins who live covered by the mask of patriotism, and have no other aim than to send innumerable brothers to die—brothers who imagine that they are sacrificing themselves on the altar of their country. What did this Junta mean, he asks, by sending an expedition to the beach of Punta Prava, a place in possession of the Government and without communication with the interior? What diabolical idea possessed it to lose this cargo and the 125 or 130 men who came by the Upton? And what arrangements had been made with those who were to receive these arms, when it was altogether impossible for them to reach the beach? This bitter and painful truth brings the bad faith of these men (the Junta) to light, and MEDAL, who, with many companions of the expedition, had been wandering lost about these mountains, hungry, naked, burnt by the fiery sun, and worn out with thirst and fatigue. MEDAL says he prayed God to have compassion on him and to wreak vengeance on the perfidious. The document I refer to is signed by LOUIS MEDAL, and the other two are couched in similar language, TOMAS ALMEYDA, who, I believe, was at one time Secretary of the Cuban Junta at Key West, adding the following particulars in his declaration relating to the treatment on board, namely, that they were treated badly on the Upton; that the officers lived "in clover" and did not even care whether the men had anything to eat or not. Also, that there was no organization whatsoever; that the Cuban leaders were no soldiers, and that those who were, did not speak Spanish. ALMEYDA confirms the statement that BETANCOURT sent the sick men into the mountains without provisions, and that they lived on the few crabs they could catch. The third prisoner, GARCIA, repeats the same story of hunger and despotic treatment aboard. The three prisoners also requested in writing, that the commander of the gun-boat should intercede in their behalf. And now comes the story of Spanish generosity toward these sick and defenceless prisoners—men who surrendered without having fired a shot and without being in possession of arms. These men, who pointed out to their captors the hidden arms, were taken to Puerto Principe and had a conversation with the Captain-General, who generously ordered a verbal court-martial to assemble, which tried them as prisoners, and they were executed behind the jail at Puerto Principe on the 2d of June. They had far better died without writing a line, but they were led to hope a great deal from the kind behavior of Lieut. OLIVAREZ, of the gun-boat, who, however, had no power to interfere in their behalf.

CUBANS QUARRELING.

The reports which find their way through the Cuban ranks all agree that the leaders are not living among themselves or acting in such harmony as is required by the magnitude and importance of their undertaking. Generals quarrel with Generals, or their inferiors; the President with the Generals and Congress with somebody else. One of the most prominent leaders of the revolution, Gen. IGNACIO AGRAMONTE LAYNAS, only lately Commander-in-Chief, has written a letter to CESPEDES, which is simply a challenge to fight a duel. The Voz de Cuba, referring to this letter, says that if both were of any account, they would work in unison instead of quarreling. CESPEDES being the Cuban revolution personified, and IGNACIO AGRAMONTE the man of action. This remark from the ultra Voz de Cuba is timely and true; if the Cubans wish to win they must, above all, sink every personal feeling and work only to accomplish the object they have in view. Internal dissensions will be the worst enemy they will have to contend with, and all private differences and difficulties ought to be forgotten for the present.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.

According to the reports of both parties, the campaign sustained in the Eastern Department is the most difficult and thankless of all, not only on account of the weather, but also owing to the bad roads and peculiar qualities of that mountainous region. MODESTO DIAZ manages to keep VALMASEDA busy, and has been skillful and successful enough to thwart the efforts of the 3,500 men which compose the several columns operating against him. Many times the troops were quite positive that they had caged the fox, and flattered themselves with the pleasing delusion that their troubles and labor would soon be ended. But DIAZ always found means to escape them, and by his shrewdness and knowledge of the country always avoided falling into the trap laid for him, escaping at times only by the "skin of his teeth," and not always with a "whole hide." The latest news from Santiago de Cuba states that he was completely surrounded in the Cienaga del Buey by the columns of CANVIZALES, BONICHE, HEREDIA, PEDEMONTE and GALDOS, and at the moment when everybody was expecting to hear the news of his being killed or captured we learn, through private sources, (the Press and RODAS being silent on the subject,) that DIAZ had cut his way through, killing twenty-seven and wounding thirty-nine Spamards, with a loss to himself of thirty-eight killed and nearly one hundred wounded. After the fight the Spanish troops, who had marched over twenty miles, were so exhausted that they were unable to pursue him. The Cuban Col. HALL, with a body of men from MARCANO'S division, is endeavoring to overtake MODESTO DIAZ, and will most probably succeed. Col. VELASCO, who was wounded in a recent engagement with DIAZ, has left his command and come to Havana. Since the arrival of the steamer several ominous rumors have been in circulation from this region, and the Diario, without specifying them at all, declares them to be false. The rumors are that the presentados near Guantanamo were continually molested and ill-treated, and that they had joined the army again against the Spaniards, together with the negroes of all the plantations in that vicinity, who had risen en masse and formed a formidable force. There is some probability of such an event, but your correspondent cannot vouch for the truth of these reports, although it is more than probable that they rest on some foundation and have been exaggerated.

SEIZURE BY CREDITORS.

Your correspondent has just been informed that all the funds of the ALDAMA family in England, amounting to $850,000, have been embargoed and seized by the creditors of the Bahia Railroad in England, the late Mr. DOMINGO ALDAMA having signed a security bond. Rumors of this have been circulating for some time, and as Mr. ALDAMA had been connected largely with railroad matters, the report may be true.

THE MARY LOWELL CASE,

which has caused such an immense amount of diplomatic talk, is again on the tapis. The Spanish Government, although repeatedly asked for a duplicate of the papers in the case, always refused to furnish a copy under some pretext or other, stating that the papers had gone to Spain. On Wednesday the documents were at last delivered to the American Consul, who had them copied and they will go forward today to Washington. QUASIMODO.

The Western Importers—Letter from Secretary Boutwell.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY, June 6, 1870.

Editors Missouri Democrat:

GENTLEMEN: I inclose a newspaper slip headed "Official Discrimination Against the West," and take the liberty to communicate with you in reference to the statement contained in the article.

It is true that goods are transmitted in bond from San Francisco to Chicago and New-York upon the lines of railway.

As far as I know, or can learn from inquiry in the Department, no application has ever been made for a bonded line of railway connecting St. Louis with the Pacific roads at Omaha; and, therefore, it is true that goods cannot be forwarded in bond from San Francisco to St. Louis; but I am not aware of any circumstance which will prevent the bonding of a road from St. Louis to the existing line of bonded railway and the transmission of goods in bond to your city, should the proper steps be taken by the railways or merchants interested in the business.

The construction uniformly given by the Department in relation to the transmission of goods in bond from the port of entry to an interior port is this, (and it seems to me to be the only construction authorized by law,) namely: That goods may be moved from a port of entry to an interior port of delivery; but that the law does not authorize the subsequent removal of the same goods in bond from the interior port of delivery to another port. If it has occasionally happened, I am informed, that officers at the Customs have authorized the transfer of goods in bond from a port of delivery to which they had been forwarded to another port of delivery; but such acts have always been condemned by the Department as not warranted by law. I cannot learn that in this respect any distinction has been made between the West and the East, or between the different sections of the country; and I may say that if it has occurred during my administration, it has been without my knowledge.

It is true that the law makes a distinction between ports of entry and ports of delivery; but the article in the Democrat does not, as I understand it, complain of the law, but of its interpretation at the Treasury Department.

Very respectfully,
GEO. S. BOUTWELL, Secretary.

Bryant's New Opera-House—Plan of the Proposed Building.

Mr. DANIEL BRYANT, the eminent negro minstrel, is about to attain one of the objects of his ambition in the construction of an opera-house of his own, on a plan after his own heart, designed and executed under the direction of the well-known architect, Mr. S. D. HATCH. The building is to be located on the north side of Twenty-third-street, a short distance west of Sixth-avenue, and will be 50 feet in front and 98 feet in depth. The front is to be of iron, built in the Renaissance style, in four sections, with a portico at the entrance. The interior will consist of a parquet, dress circle and balcony, capable of seating 750 persons. The seats will be of comfortable width, neatly upholstered, and every one so placed as to command a good view of the stage. There will be four proscenium boxes, and the whole interior of the building will be finely frescoed and ornamented. The stage opening will be 30 feet wide and the depth of the stage 33 feet; height from floor to ceiling about 35 feet. Above the auditorium there will be a spacious hall for meetings of various kinds. The means of ventilation and the modes of ingress and egress promise to be all that could be desired; and in fact the honest intention appears to be to make the building a model little opera-house in every particular. Laborers are already busy on the foundations, and the work is to be pushed rapidly forward to its completion.

The Wolff Malpractice Case.

Coroner ROLLINS yesterday concluded the inquest in the case of Miss HENRIETTA ULLMAN, who died recently at No. 517 East Twelfth-street from the effects of the malpractice of MICHAEL A. A. WOLFF, of No. 182 Seventh-street. The evidence showed plainly that malpractice had been performed, and from the fact that the prisoner attended the woman at the time, the jury became convinced that he had caused her death by that means, Dr. RUPPRECHT having testified that the deceased woman had informed him, previous to her demise, of the operation having been performed by the prisoner. A verdict was therefore rendered against WOLFF, who has been for some time confined in the Tombs on the charge of murdering another woman, who, it is alleged, died from his malpractice, under the name of H. Hunt. WOLFF is held for trial on both charges.

Organization of the American Ladies' Aid Association for Cuban Women and Children.

Pursuant to a call issued by some of the leading ladies of Washington, a large number of ladies interested in the Cuban cause assembled at room No. 40 Fifth-avenue Hotel, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. PHELPS was elected Chairman, and Mrs. Judge BARRETT, Secretary. Mrs. VILAVERDE was present to represent the Liga de Cuba; Mrs. GALVEZ represented Hijas de la Libertad; Mrs. COLAS, La Junta.

Rev. Dr. FRENCH, of Washington, stated the object of the meeting, which was to organize an association which would appeal to the country at large for clothing, unmade-up goods and money for the suffering poor in Cuba.

The call was purely of a charitable nature, and the ladies intended to confine themselves to works of charity. On motion of Mrs. FULLER, a committee of five ladies were appointed to select a name for the new child. The following officers were then elected: President, Mrs. J. J. ROOSEVELT; Vice-President to be chosen afterward; Secretary, Mrs. Judge BARRETT; Treasurer, Mrs. Ralph Mead; Executive Committee, Mrs. Phelps, Girard, Colas, Wood, Bedenheimer.

A bazaar and a floral exhibition were talked of. The Committee on a Name reported that they had selected the name "American Ladies' Aid Association for Cuban Women and Children." After some general remarks, and a desperate attempt to get the ladies to indorse raffling the A. L. A. A. f. C. W. and C., adjourned.

THE CAREER OF A CRIMINAL.

"Tommy" Hadden's Numerous Offenses—Their Condonation in New-York and Final Punishment in New-Jersey—History of the Culprit.

For twenty-five years there has been no name more common in the criminal annals of New-York than that of THOMAS HADDEN, of the Fourth Ward. An adept in all manner of villainy, and possessed of sufficient political influence to shield him from the consequences of his crimes, he was a constant terror and disgrace to the community that suffered him to pursue, unchecked, a career that in any other place than New-York would have long ago terminated in a prison. Often arrested for manifold outrages upon persons and property, he almost invariably managed to evade the law in the Police Courts, was only once tried in the General Sessions, and was there convicted and sentenced to a long term in State Prison, which he never reached, however, as his counsel obtained a stay of proceedings, and in a few days he was again in his old den plying his nefarious vocation. At last this ruffian, emboldened by such protracted impunity, forgot himself so far as to invade New-Jersey, and has learned to his exceeding sorrow that New-York methods of administering justice do not prevail in that province by being sent to State Prison for ten years, for an exploit that on this side the water would have been considered a pardonable eccentricity.

TOMMY HADDEN chiefly became infamous by the exercise of an art that flourishes to some extent in all great sea ports, but which he almost entirely monopolized in New-York. It was safe, congenial and so highly remunerative that it is amazing he ever for a moment abandoned the pursuit of "shanghaeing sailors" to try the more dangerous paths of crime. The art, with the singular title, was nothing else than the kidnapping of unwilling men for the mercantile marine, and it was brought to the highest perfection by TOMMY HADDEN. During his long career he has enticed thousands of men into his Water-street den, where a very little of his villainous liquor went a long way in producing the requisite degree of stupefaction, which being had the industrious TOMMY shouldered the insensible victim and put him on board the craft known in his profession as the "lime-juicer," and received the current rates of advance money for seamen. A very brisk and profitable trade he carried on for many years in human beings and never got into trouble directly through it. But he was a brawler as well as a trader, and his arrests, which were frequent, resulted most frequently from affrays in which he was engaged.

But once, if not oftener, he mounted to the highest round known in the law. Some long ago as 1852 he was arrested for one of the most cruel, cold-blooded and unprovoked murders upon record—a murder dictated solely by hope of gain, and pitilessly and savagely done. With two companions he lured a man named KEHOE into a dark alley-way in Liberty-street, where HADDEN, as was sworn to at his trial, stole upon the selected victim from behind, and dealing him a savage blow in the back of the head, buried a slungshot in his brain. Securing the gold, which was the object of the crime, the assassins fled, and KEHOE being carried to the house of a friend named O'NEILL in Fourth-avenue, died there in a few hours. HADDEN was arrested and tried for the crime, but by some means acquitted, the jury perhaps skulking behind the fact that the evidence against him was principally that of suspected accomplices. It is little to the credit of New-York, however, that a man generally believed to have been guilty of such a crime as this should have been left to pursue his nefarious calling undisturbed for so many years, and finally remanded to New-Jersey to meet the penalty of his life of infamy.

J. SHEPPARD REDIVIVUS.

Fearful Leap for Liberty—Exciting Chase After Burglars.

There was a great commotion in the Yorkville Police Court, yesterday, and the usually empty benches were crowded to excess. The cause of the excitement and large gathering in the Court was the arraignment of a man named PERRY ROWLEY, who gave his address as No. 183 Orchard-street, on a charge of being one of a gang of burglars who attempted to break into the dry-goods store of SIGISMUND TEUCHWANGER, No. 1,000 Third-avenue, and after being caught in the act made a run and fearful leap over the cliffs of the East River for their liberty, which would have made them famous if it had been in a good cause. The simple facts are these: Officers LAMBRECHT and ABBOT, of the Nineteenth Precinct, were, about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, attracted to the premises named above by hearing some noise in the rear, and got up in time to see three men scrambling over the wall of the yard into Forty-second-street. Observing the officers, the men ran with all the speed they could summon to their aid. The officers, reinforced by ALBERT OFFNER, the owner of the premises, and Officer ANDERSON, gave pursuit. The men ran along Fifty-eighth-street to Lexington-avenue, down which they ran to Fiftieth-street, when they doubled round and made for the East River. Coming to First-avenue, they turned down it and ran, still closely pursued, straight on until they came to Forty-ninth-street, where they again turned the angle and made for the river. Here Forty-ninth-street terminates in a precipice of splintering rocks over fifty feet high. Two of the men turned back a little and succeeded in hiding themselves among a number of shanties which are clustered between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets, near the bank of the river; but one of them, the man arraigned, looking excitedly around for a moment, leaped over the cliff, landing on a bit of sod beneath. The officers fired after him; but, crawling along in shelter of the rocks below, he managed to get away safely out of their sight. He was, however, subsequently arrested on the roof of a house in Forty-seventh-street by Officer LAMBRECHT. Justice BIXBY remanded him for examination. There is a sharp lookout for the other two men.

A Moonlight Excursion.

The members of the wholesale coal trade in this City, to the number of about 200, with their lady friends, went on a moonlight excursion up the Hudson as far as West Point last evening. The invitation was extended by Mr. W. E. GLADWISH, the agent of the New-York and Eastern Towing Company, who tendered the free use of a covered barge and steamer for the occasion. The company participating in the festivities were mostly young men attached to the various wholesale coal companies in this City, and, with their ladies, formed quite a select company. The guests were chosen by Mr. A. M. WILDER, Jr., of the Wilkesbarre Coal and Iron Company, and care was taken that nothing should mar the pleasure of the entertainment. The music was provided by POPST'S Twenty third Regiment Band, of Brooklyn, and dancing commenced even before the boat left the wharf at Fulton Ferry. A landing was made at Pier No. 40, New-York, to take on board the guests from this City, and then the boats started for West Point, the company partaking of a fine supper about 11 o'clock.

Personal.

The numerous friends of Mr. DORMAN B. EATON will be glad to learn that he is rapidly recovering from the injuries received by the dastardly midnight attack of last Winter. He was in Paris at the last mail advices, after a visit to one of the English watering places from which he had derived so much relief as to be able in his letters to call himself almost a well man.

Rev. T. DE WITT TALMAGE and wife left for Europe in the Java in fine health and spirits. The congregation accompanied him down the bay in a steamer chartered for the purpose, Dodworth's Band furnishing the music. Mr. TALMAGE's church made appropriation for traveling expenses, increased the insurance on his life to $30,000, and the ladies presented Mrs. TALMAGE a purse of $800 as a "pin money." Mr. TALMAGE will be home in September, at the dedication of the new Free Tabernacle, now well advanced.

Staten Island Politics.

The Republicans of the township of Castleton, S. I., who elected their Supervisor, Col. PELL, a fortnight since, had a second triumph on Tuesday last in the election of Mr. TOMPKINS WESTERVELT as Trustee of the First Ward of the village of Brighton.

The Republican General Committee of Richmond County for the ensuing year has been organized by the unanimous election of Mr. GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS as Chairman. The best of feeling pervades the new Committee, some old local jealousies have been happily composed, and the prospect is that good work will be done at the Fall elections.

Assault on Policemen.

Roundsman MCARTHUR and Officer BARRETT, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, found a man lying on the sidewalk at the corner of Third-avenue and Eighty-sixth-street, asleep, and woke him up. He went into the boarding-house of PATRICK CARMON, No. 168 East Eighty-sixth-street, using such threatening language that the officers followed him in. As they were going up the back stairs in the dark some one threw a large stick of wood down upon them, which struck BARRETT in the head, throwing him to the foot of the stairs, where he was picked up and found to be insensible from concussion of the brain, besides having severe lacerations on the face. He was carried to the Station-house, where his wounds were dressed, and Capt. BYRNES immediately repairing to the scene of the assault, arrested CARMON and one PETER CUNNINGHAM as the persons who had committed the assault. They were arraigned at the Yorkville Police Court, and held to await the result of the injuries.

EXTRADITION DECISION.

Judge Blatchford's Order in the Case of Farez, the Alleged Swiss Forger—The Commissioner's Proceedings Annulled—A New Examination Ordered.

A decision was given by Judge SAMUEL BLATCHFORD, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday, in the case of FRANCOIS FAREZ, after a review of the proceedings before Commissioner WHITE, who remanded the prisoner to the custody of Marshal SHARPE a few days ago, to be held for extradition by the Swiss Government on a charge of forgery, alleged to have been committed at the Canton of Berne during the Fall of last year. The case was made returnable before Judge BLATCHFORD on writs of certiorari and habeas corpus. The Court held, on the objections made by the couns

...employ referred to leave the District Attorney's office, in the Tombs. A man named Geo. Appleton there at the time, and he is the person who announced his departure. Marshal SHARPE, who is now in custody, and who is under his new bonds, had no cause to arrest any of the prisoners.

THE HARLEM RAILROAD DEPOT.

Efforts of the City Authorities to Prevent Further Work by the Company—Case before the Supreme Court, General Term.

A case of much interest was brought up, yesterday, before the General Term of the Supreme Court, Judges BARNARD and CARDOZO presiding. It is known as the application and petition of the New-York, Harlem and Hudson River Railroad Company, for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal." Presiding Justice INGRAHAM did not sit during the argument of the appeal, but he had passed upon the questions involved in the case when it was before him in the first instance. The facts of the case are briefly as follows: In order to secure an entrance into the City of New-York, and to connect the New-York and Harlem Railroad with the Hudson River Railroad, the Company desired to obtain the right to run its cars over the tracks of the Fourth-avenue Railroad, and to that end applied to the Mayor of the City, upon the 29th of April, 1869, for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal, to ascertain the compensation to be made to the Fourth-avenue Railroad Company for the use of its tracks. The Mayor refused to make the appointment, and the Company then applied to the Supreme Court for a mandamus to compel him to do so. The Court granted the mandamus, and the Mayor appointed Commissioners, who, after hearing the parties, awarded the Fourth-avenue Railroad Company the sum of $75,000 for the use of its tracks. The Company refused to pay this amount, and the Fourth-avenue Railroad Company then applied to the Supreme Court for a mandamus to compel the Company to pay the money. The Company opposed the granting of the mandamus, on the ground that the Commissioners had awarded too much money, and that the Court had no power to grant the mandamus. The Court, however, granted the mandamus, and the Company appealed from the decision. The case was argued at length by Mr. BRADY, for the Company, and by Mr. BOOTH, for the Fourth-avenue Railroad Company. The argument was based upon the question whether the Company had the right to run its cars over the tracks of the Fourth-avenue Railroad Company, and not upon the question whether the Commissioners had awarded too much money. The Court reserved its decision.

THE COMMISSIONERS OF DOCKS.

Plan for Improving the Piers of the City—Fifty Million Dollars to be Expended.

The Commissioners of Docks met yesterday afternoon and transacted some routine business, after which no executive session was held.

Permission was given to F. WHITE to construct a drain-pipe on the bulkhead from No. 322 South-street to the foot of Roosevelt-street.

Engineer GEORGE S. GREENE, Jr., of the Warehousing Company, embodied their views in respect to the improvement of the piers of the City. The principal features of the plan which was published.

The plan proposed to construct a sea wall fifty feet outside the bulkhead line upon which rail-tracks would be laid. The wooden piers would then be built into the warehouses, six stories high. The basement would be used for storage. A communication was presented from the Secretary of the Treasury, asking for the transportation of coal to the City. The principal features of the plan which would be adopted in order to carry out the object in view were published.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The Abolitionists in London are urging the Government to insist on emancipation of the slaves in the Spanish colonies ...The rumored defection of the Marquis of BUTE from the Roman Catholic Church is doubted....The race for the Gold Cup at Ascot, yesterday, was won by Mr. J. G. HESSEY's b. g. Sabinus....The Prince NAPOLEON is said to be ill at Meudon. The Emperor is still suffering from gout....A London dispatch says breadstuffs of all kinds are advancing rapidly in France. A bill relieving from duty all grain imported into France, was introduced in the Chamber and referred to a Committee. The French Government has decided to remove the stamp duty on newspapers....The United States Consul-General in France entertained M. PREVOST PARADOL, the new Minister to Washington, at a dinner....The new law regarding marriage in Spain requires the opening of 9,000 registers of civic marriages. The message of President GRANT on the Cuban question, gives great satisfaction in Spain.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

On the 27th of April, a revolution broke out in Costa Rica, which resulted in the overthrow of the Jimmines Government, after a conflict in which five officers were killed and a number wounded. An abortive attempt at revolt was recently made in San Salvador, resulting in the exile of the leaders. Quiet prevailed in Honduras, after a recent revolution, which has proved satisfactory to all the provinces. Panama advices represent that the Darien Survey Expedition was expected to finish its work in June. The Secretary of the Supreme Court of New-Grenada has been convicted of forging Government bonds....The Bolivian Government has decided not to collect the six per cent. export duty on foreign money. Money was plentiful in Peru, and its reinforced fleet is regarded as the strongest among the South American Republics. The Austrian Envoy had completed a treaty of commerce with Peru, and taken his departure. Several houses were demolished by an earthquake, recently, in Iquique, Peru, and some lives lost.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, a substitute for the bill providing for the transportation of European, Asiatic and Australian goods across the continent was reported from the Committee on Commerce. The substitute provides for transportation in bond across the continent and not to interior cities. A joint resolution pledging the faith of the Government to construct a breakwater and harbor of refuge at the eastern entrance of the proposed Cape Cod Canal was reported. A general bill authorizing the Secretary of War to deliver condemned cannon to cities or municipalities who may ask for it, for monuments of soldiers, was passed. The House bill to establish a Department of Justice was passed. The Franking bill was taken up at 1 o'clock, and a protracted debate ensued. A motion to postpone the subject till next session was defeated by 17 to 34. An amendment continuing the present provisions of the law regarding free transmissions of newspapers was adopted. An amendment depriving members of Congress and Postmasters of the privilege was offered. The Senate adjourned without voting on the amendment.

In the House, petitions asking for drawback on cotton goods exported to China after June, 1868; for a uniform rate of sixteen cents on manufactured tobacco and snuff, and for a break-water at Jefferson Harbor, Long Island Sound, were presented. A bill was reported to abolish the duty on all kinds of coal. The House at an early stage in the proceedings began to vote on the Cuban resolutions. The substitute offered by Mr. BINGHAM, on Wednesday, for the resolution reported by the majority of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, was adopted by a vote of 102 to 88. The Conference Committee on the Pension Appropriation bill reported non-agreement with the Senate, and the House refused to concur in the Senate's amendment relating to the Navy Pension Fund. The Sergeant-at-Arms was directed to take WOODS, the assailant of Mr. PORTER, to Richmond to testify in a murder trial, and then bring him back to await the action of the House. A bill granting the right of way through the public lands to the Utah Central Railway Company was passed. A bill was reported granting to the Western Pacific Railroad the island of Yerba Buena for a terminus. An amendment requiring the payment of $2,000,000 for the property was offered and rejected. The previous question was moved and seconded, but without finishing the subject the House adjourned.

GENERAL.

The reasons for relieving Admiral POOR of the command of the North Atlantic Squadron are to be found in the law requiring squadrons to be commanded by officers in active service. The Admiral was placed on the retired list recently.

The Government has determined to comply with the request of RED CLOUD to be provided with horses to convey his party from the railroad to their home.

Col. GEORGE W. CARR, of Jackson County, has been nominated for Congress by the Republicans of the Second Indiana District, and MOSES J. DUNN, of Lawrence County, by those of the Sixth District.

The San Francisco Board of Supervisors declare the election on the proposition to donate $1,000,000 to the Southern Pacific Railroad Company to have gone in favor of the Company, and at the same time express the conviction that a great fraud has been perpetrated to effect that result.

The President has nominated AMOS T. AKERMAN, of Georgia, to be Attorney-General of the United States in place of Mr. HOAR, resigned.

The Boston, Hartford and Erie Railway Aid bill passed the Massachusetts Senate to engrossment on Wednesday by 22 to 14.

The schooner Susan Ross, of Brooklyn, was run down and sunk in a fog by the steamer Cambridge, off the Maine coast. The crew escaped in a small boat and were picked up by the Cambridge.

The bark Philena, from Hoboken for Portland, ran on a rock between Noman's Land and Greyhead, in a fog, off the Massachusetts coast, and sunk in six fathoms of water. The Captain and crew got off safe.

Three gentlemen, taken prisoners a few days ago on Cayo Cruze, Cuba, it is said, left Nassau in February last, and were supposed to have been killed by the crew of their vessel. Their whereabouts since is not definitely known, and it is supposed that they have been in communication with the rebel leaders.

Several disasters to vessels in the Pacific Ocean are reported by way of Bombay and London.

The Board of State Canvassers have declared the election of Sanford E. Church, Chief Judge, and Wm. F. Allen, Martin Grover, Rufus W. Peckham, Chas. A. Rapallo, Democrats, and Chas. J. Folger and Chas. Andrews, Republicans, Associate Justices. Church's majority is 87,912.

Gov. SEWARD left Auburn on Wednesday, on a visit to his son FREDERICK, at Montrose, N. Y., where he will remain a week. He is in excellent health.

The Maine State Temperance Executive Committee last night voted to postpone indefinitely the Convention called to meet at Auburn today, the action of the Republican State Convention being deemed satisfactory to the Temperance people.

The New-Hampshire Legislature yesterday elected NATHAN W. GOVE, of Concord, Secretary of State, and PETER SANBORN, of Concord, State Treasurer.

A train of cars broke through a bridge on the Vermont and Massachusetts Railroad, between Royalston and Athol, Vt., yesterday, killing three persons and more or less severely injuring eighteen others. The locomotive and three cars were completely wrecked.

The City is vigorously contesting the right of the New-York and Harlem Railroad Company to take certain portions of Fourth-avenue, and other public streets up town, for the use of a new depot. The case was before the General Term of the Supreme Court yesterday, when Mr. O'GORMAN, for the City, and Mr. CHAS. O'CONOR, for the Company, spoke at considerable length. The argument will be resumed this morning by Judge PORTER in behalf of the City.

RED CLOUD yesterday had a public reception at the Cooper Institute, where a large crowd of people assembled to see him and his companions. RED CLOUD and RED DOG made speeches, and several white men followed in remarks on the Indian question. In the evening, the party left the City for the Western plains.

The President and Cuba.

The great Cuban debate is over, and what does it amount to? To nothing more than the old story of the mountain and the mouse. Gen. BANKS has managed to display a portion of his large and varied assortment of "wind-bags." Mr. FERNANDO WOOD has done his best to provide a model speech for the numerous gentlemen who are engaged to address their friends on the 4th of next month. Gen. LOGAN has made one of his celebrated "rub-a-dub" orations, very noisy and very much calculated to startle weak nerves; and Mr. RANDALL has called Gen. BUTLER dishonest. After all this labor, Mr. BINGHAM'S mouse creeps into the world. The President is authorized to remonstrate against the "barbarous manner in which the war in Cuba has been conducted"—the resolution not even stating on which side the barbarism has been displayed, so that the President might "remonstrate" with Gen. JORDAN'S friends if he thought proper. And this is all. Mr. BANKS fulminated in his very best manner, and brought out all the warlike appliances which he constantly keeps ready for use. But his powder was damp and would not go off. Mr. BINGHAM and common sense have prevailed against unmeaning vaporing and bluster.

The truth is that Gen. BANKS had nothing to propose. The resolutions which he reported to the House were only calculated to delude the friends of the Cuban insurgents into the belief that the United States Government was prepared to render them substantial assistance. Mr. BANKS can never resist the temptation to range himself on what he believes to be the popular side of a question, but in this matter he has only dared to go half way. He appears to wish to force the President into a position from which there would be no way of escape except by entering into a war with Spain. Well, then, why does not Gen. BANKS have the manliness to take the full responsibility of the course into which he is anxious to beguile the President? He knows very well that this Government cannot intervene in favor of the Cuban insurgents without involving the country in a war with Spain. Why not take the short road to his object at once? The Constitution confers upon Congress the right of declaring war. There is no need to vituperate the President in the matter, or to throw all the responsibility upon him. Let Mr. BANKS persuade Congress to make what he describes as the "wholesale butchery of the defenseless people of Cuba" a casus belli. We should think that rather a remarkable course, and one which would add a new feature or two to "international law;" but at least it would be straightforward. These attacks on the President and Mr. FISH are simply absurd. The President has no right to declare war against Spain, or to do anything which would cause Spain to declare war against the United States. Thus far he has simply performed his duty, and the people would never have forgiven him if he had been led astray by those who denounce him for not "making Cuba free."

We have not the slightest doubt that the President would be very glad to see the friends of liberty triumph everywhere: but he happens to be in a position of vast responsibility, and must act cautiously—an obligation which is not shared by the Woods and Logans of the House. They can cry havoc and let loose the dogs of war every day in the week, if they are in the humor, and no one will be either worse or better off. But suppose the President were to be everlastingly fuming and threatening, like another Bombastes Furioso, how would a sober-minded and decorous nation like it? A man in Congress may say anything he likes, but the President is expected to have a due regard for laws and for the public interest. If Mr. BANKS could by some miracle be President to-morrow, his martial ardor would almost certainly cool down, and he would be found in favor of not embroiling the country needlessly with foreign Powers. Responsibility invariably sobers men. Gen. GRANT is, however, quite right in wishing to modify his policy so as to gratify the reasonable desires of the people. A protest against Spanish cruelties in the Island of Cuba may possibly warn Spain that she must be very cautious how she carries on this war, and that, above all, she must not allow murderous hands to be laid on American citizens. The President will undoubtedly take all necessary steps in this direction, and, if his intention should render necessary a reconstruction of the Cabinet, no one can help it. In short, the President, we are convinced, will insure ample protection to our countrymen in Cuba, and everywhere else, but we trust he will not be hounded on by the wild cries of irresponsible men to an act which the people would afterward condemn with one voice.

The Last Appeal of Red Cloud.

Yesterday the races immediately interested in the solution of the "Indian problem" were brought face to face. It was an occasion which will long be remembered by those who were spectators of it—an occasion invested with a strange, memorable, and even pathetic interest. The descendants of the first occupants of our soil came from their wildernesses into the very heart of our greatest City. Men who have been used to solitude and a life of wild adventure and excitement, suddenly appeared upon the platform of Cooper Institute—a most inappropriate looking place—to implore simple justice on behalf of a vanishing race. A few years more, and the great Chiefs who yesterday were before the New-York public will also have melted away, like "snow upon the hill-side." Their attempts to tell their own story to the white men, instead of allowing it to pass through all sorts of corrupt and adverse channels, will hereafter rank conspicuously among the historical events connected with the Indian race.

No one who listened to RED CLOUD'S remarkable speech yesterday can doubt that he is a man of very great talents. It is almost wonderful that he could make a speech at all under the circumstances. The hall—or huge cellar—was densely crowded, and the heat was almost intolerable. It was easy to fancy how the Indians must have sighed for a breath of fresh air from the prairies. It is always a trying thing for a man not given to much talking to be called upon to address an immense audience. It must have been doubly trying to RED CLOUD, for everything relating to civilization—except lying and cheating—is new to him. He has spent his life in fighting the battles of his people, and one day he is transplanted to Cooper Institute, and asked to put on a clean shirt, a new waistcoat, a high-crowned hat, and then make a speech. Among all the vicissitudes of his life this must be the most startling, and, perhaps, not the most agreeable.

Although the audience labored under the disadvantage of not knowing what RED CLOUD said, until his words were filtered through an interpreter—and no doubt greatly weakened in the process—still his earnest manner, his impassioned gestures, the eloquence of his hands, and the magnetism which he evidently exercises over an audience, produced a vast effect on the dense throng which listened to him yesterday. His speech was like a poem. When we consider that education and civilization have done nothing for him, except to teach him, in the words of the Psalmist, that "all men are liars"—and that he was placed yesterday in a situation which must have been most embarrassing, and possibly distressing to him, it is impossible to refrain from being much moved by his appeals. "You have children, and so have we. We want to rear our children well, and ask you to help us in doing so." It seems to us that this is not an unreasonable request, even though it does come from a "savage."

The solemnity of RED CLOUD'S manner, an impressive way which he has of throwing both his arms upwards when referring to the "Great Spirit," and the intense pathos which he threw into his tones at many parts of his speech, thoroughly enlisted the sympathies of the audience in his favor. Everybody could understand the thrilling power which a speech from this man would carry with it when addressed to his own tribe, on a question in which they were all deeply interested. Less severe in his manner, but equally effective in another way, was RED DOG, the orator of the Sioux. He appears to be the wag of the tribe. RED CLOUD is a man of war, and looks like it; but RED DOG has a fine intellectual face, and a somewhat portly figure. He said: "When the Great Father first sent out men to our people, I was poor and thin; now I am large and stout and fat. It is because so many liars have been sent out there, and I have been stuffed full with their lies." Many persons on the platform were astonished to find that an "illiterate barbarian" could handle the weapon of sarcasm. The truth is that the Indians spoke far better than ninety-nine out of a hundred members of Congress, and as for their "action," it would have satisfied DEMOSTHENES himself.

And now what is to be the result of all this? People have stared at RED CLOUD in his "stove-pipe" hat—and a more monstrous incongruity in costume we admit we never beheld; they have flocked in thousands to hear him speak, and most of them admit that there is a great deal of truth in all that he says. Is he, then, to secure the redress he asks for? Of course there are bad Indians—we have even heard of bad white men for that matter. But as RED CLOUD truly said yesterday, the whole Indian race has to bear the punishment for the crimes committed by the Indians on the frontiers, who have been corrupted and demoralized by our whisky. All that RED CLOUD asks for on behalf of his people is this—have just men sent out to them as agents, and let them be protected on their reservations. They only beg that they may not be deceived, plundered, and betrayed. Is that so preposterous a demand that we ought not to comply with it? We have broken faith with the Indians on many occasions, and then declared that a war of extermination was the only thing to bring them to their senses. When the people yesterday, at the invitation of Dr. CROSBY, proclaimed their disapproval of this policy, and their opinion was translated to RED CLOUD, the chief rose with much emotion, shook hands with Dr. CROSBY, and bowed to the audience. He has, perhaps, not knowing our civilized ways, and consequently not being aware that our pledges sometimes mean nothing, overestimated the importance of the promises made to him yesterday. He is not aware that there are many men of the Spotted Tail order eastward of the prairies. But still we cannot help hoping that this visit of the Indians will achieve some good. It ought at least to set people inquiring whether or not we have been guided by a sense of justice in our treatment of the Indians—and the more they inquire (especially if they go into certain army reports relating to Indian massacres) the more foundation they will discover for the belief that poor RED CLOUD'S complaints and appeals have been provoked by long and bitter ill-usage. We have long been doing justice to the negro. Is it not almost time to see what we can do for the Indian?

Congress and the Currency—A Move Backward.

The Currency bill passed by the Senate in February provides for the withdrawal of the three per cent. temporary loan certificates, and an additional issue of forty-five millions of national bank notes to compensate for their cancellation. It assigns this new circulation to national banks to be organized in States and Territories having less than the proportion originally conceded to them; and authorizes the withdrawal of twenty millions from banks in States having more than their pro rata amount of circulation—the twenty millions thus obtained being used to enlarge the basis available for the new banks, which are to be required to hold gold and silver amounting to one-fourth of their circulation. The general effect of the Senate bill, therefore, is to leave the volume of currency undisturbed. It contemplates changes in the distribution of $65,000,000, and the process prescribed might possibly entail some temporary inconvenience upon the monetary centers of the East. But it avoids both of the alternative evils, and so displeases both the contractionists and the expansionists.

The House has not acted with equal wisdom. It has discussed and divided again and again with an apparent uncertainty of purpose which has sufficed to keep alive anxiety. It has threatened us alternately with expansion and contraction, and has shown a lamentable inability to appreciate the real dangers of either. For the time, the advocates of expansion have triumphed to the extent of fifty millions. The bill, as finally amended and adopted on Wednesday, makes the addition to the national bank circulation ninety-five instead of forty-five millions,—the latter sum being used, as by the Senate measure, to replace the three per cent. certificates. The amount of circulation to be taken from States having an excess over the proportions legally theirs is also increased to twenty-five millions.

The step taken by the House is a step in the wrong direction. It interposes a new obstacle to resumption at a time when events seemed to be quietly gravitating toward that desirable result. We have steadily resisted all proposals to hasten its realization by legislative means. The mischief produced by what seemed to be a moderate rate of contraction under Mr. MCCULLOCH'S management of the Treasury was too widely and too seriously felt to render a renewal of the policy desirable. The industry and business interests of the country can better afford a brief continuance of inconvertibility, to which their transactions have been adapted, than the perpetual strain to which contraction in any form necessarily subjects them. To them the currency question is one of practice, not of theory. Doctrinaires may demonstrate that the currency now in circulation exceeds proportionally the amounts which serve the purposes of England and other European countries; they may prove by the book that, tried by this standard, we are tortured with the horrors of inflation, from which only a merciless squeezing process can finally extricate us. All this has been done many times. Still the fact remains that the country has accustomed itself to the present amount, and experiences from it, practically, no embarrassment. Besides, each succeeding year so multiplies the legitimate currency wants of the community, and the legitimate channels of circulation, that time alone may be relied upon to restore us to a condition of perfect financial soundness. Meanwhile let the amount of paper money remain as it is. This country is in many respects a law unto itself—its extent and the rapid development of its resources rendering inapplicable many analogies based upon the experience of communities whose circumstances are widely different.

But if we may not have contraction, it is quite certain that we cannot afford to recommence expansion. Undesirable as are all attempts to hasten the resumption of specie payments, they are not more averse from the popular judgment, nor more inimical to the general interest, than schemes tending to make resumption more difficult and remote. And expansion, however slight, is a hindrance to resumption. The additional fifty millions provided by Mr. GARFIELD'S bill would be a very serious evil. Their issue would introduce uncertainty into everything. We have seen that the mere possibility of its enactment imparted a speculative element to the gold market; and disturbance and speculation there involve an unsettlement of values, with more or less embarrassment to all trade, and positive loss to all consumers. We shall be further off resumption—not nearer to it, as we ought to be.

There is this objection to expansion, too—by opening afresh the currency question in its worst form, it renders everything like fixedness of policy impossible. If the West and South can carry fifty millions inflation this year, what guarantee have we against further action of the same kind next year? Open the door once to satisfy local cries for more currency, and who knows when it will be finally closed? The quackery which proposes to stimulate prosperity by the enactment of Mr. GARFIELD'S bill will not rest satisfied there. It is the knowledge of this fact which invests the expansion just sanctioned by the House with special significance. For it makes unattainable the consciousness of fixedness and security which is one of the financial desiderata of the day; it is the beginning of a policy of concession to an ignorant and reckless demand, and one fraught with peril to the solid enterprises and best business interests of the country. We can but hope that the firmness of the Senate will avert the threatened mischief.

Free Lager in Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts Senate has just accepted the report of the Committee of Conference, and made a change in the Prohibitory law of that State which may be of importance. The Committee had taken the ground, substantially, that no prohibitory law can prevent drinking in public places, but that it may be possible to check the worst forms of the indulgence. They have accordingly recommended that the more intoxicating drinks, such as brandy, rum, whisky, and wine, be forbidden, while the use of ale and lager-beer is permitted. The Senate has accepted the recommendation, and the House probably will favor it, so that this will form another of the innumerable experiments made in that State to enforce temperance by legislation. The purists will be indignant at it, and will prove just how many mugs of lager or Bass' pale ale will intoxicate an honest working man; they will argue logically that if the use of alcohol is wrong or injurious to the public weal in sour claret or weak Rhenish, it must be as much so in heady Scotch ale or strong Poughkeepsie beer, and if we forbid the one, we ought to forbid the other. They will urge triumphantly that human depravity will be sure to sell whisky in lager-glasses, or Jamaica rum in beer-mugs, and the law be thus evaded.

Still, though we would have included light wines among the permitted drinks, we think the Massachusetts legislators are right, even in the face of all these objections. We believe a similar concession would have saved our old Liquor law. Legislation is necessarily a series of compromises. It would, perhaps, be desirable to forbid all temptations being presented to weak men; it would be a good thing for the public if every citizen were compelled to be virtuous, and temperate, and industrious, and religious. But as legislation cannot bring about these results, it comes as near it as is possible by favoring the side of virtue in public arrangements, cutting off the more open and vicious temptations, and protecting each person in the discharge of his moral or religious duties. As it cannot enforce absolute abstinence, it aids temperance by hedging in the sale of intoxicating drinks. Yet it has always to dread the usual reaction against too strict legislation on personal habits. Not being able to prevent all intoxicating drinking, it allows the more mild and less injurious forms of it, and thus is able to control the more dangerous.

Theoretically, there may be no difference between lager and whisky drinking. Practically, in its effects on public morals, and the offenses against law, there is a vast difference; and this contrast the practical legislator must regard. He knows that a German beer-garden, or a lager-beer concert-room, or an ale-house, pure and simple, is not productive of one-tenth part of the criminal offenses and disturbances of the public peace which arise in whisky-shops. The authorities may, indeed, be deceived, and brandy be sold in a beer-garden; but if it be sold at tables with people sitting and families present, there is not a fractional part of the crimes which follow hasty drinking at bars. The Massachusetts legislators have done, on the whole, wisely in permitting "free lager."

The New Attorney-General.

The retirement of Judge HOAR from the Cabinet was, as we stated yesterday, determined upon some time ago, probably at the time he was nominated by the President as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Hon. AMOS T. AKERMAN, whose name has been sent to the Senate to succeed him, is a gentleman comparatively unknown in political circles at Washington or at the North. He is a native of New-Hampshire, and is about fifty years of age. He graduated at Dartmouth in 1842, and shortly afterward removed to Georgia, where he was admitted to the Bar in 1850. He has since resided in Elbert County, in that State, and has achieved a leading position at the Southern Bar.

Originally he was a Whig of the Henry Clay school, but subsequently became an active Republican. At the outbreak of the secession movement he was a strong Union man, but after a time reluctantly acquiesced in the rebellion. After the war closed, he was a zealous reconstructionist, and was a prominent member of the Georgia Constitutional Convention, acting as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Subsequently he was appointed United States District-Attorney for that State by President GRANT, and we believe he has held that position till the present appointment. He has the reputation of being a sound lawyer, and a gentleman of culture and fine executive ability. Aside from any peculiar fitness he may have for the new position to which he has been called, his appointment is significant as a recognition of the claims of the reconstructed South to a representation in the Federal Cabinet—a recognition in which it would be well for the Senate to concur by a prompt confirmation of the appointment.

The Tariff as a Test Question.

In its zeal in behalf of revenue reform, the Evening Post inculcates a policy tending directly to the disruption of the Republican Party. It insists that in the Fall campaign free-trade shall everywhere be made the test question, and that the friends of revenue reform, who may also be Republicans, shall oppose any Republican candidate who may happen to be a protectionist.

"If in any district the Republican managers nominate a protectionist, and the Democrats a free-trader or revenue reformer, then we hold it to be the clear duty of Republicans who desire revenue reform to support the Democrat."

We trust that the advice of the Post will not be acted upon. It may commend itself to those who desire the destruction of the present party organizations, but it will not have the approval of any man who has faith in the mission of the Republican Party and in its capacity to grapple satisfactorily with the question of taxation.

If Republican revenue reformers are to vote only for candidates who entertain their views in regard to the tariff, what may Republican high-tariff men be asked to do in districts in which both candidates are anti-protectionists? On the theory of the Evening Post, they must abstain from voting, and the result will be that in these districts the Democrats will elect their candidates. We cannot understand how this proceeding would benefit the cause of good government, or even of revenue reform.

The revision of the fiscal system and the reduction and simplification of the tariff are objects which we hope to see accomplished. They are, however, more likely to be promoted by temperate and judicious action within the Republican Party than by offensive dogmatism among Republicans, or by an electoral alliance with the Democracy. The growth of correct ideas and a tolerant spirit in the Republican Party in Congress have been satisfactorily exemplified during the present session, and we rely more upon the gradual advance of these influences than upon any effort to force tariff reform as a party issue upon Republicans.

We submit to our contemporary that its counsel is calculated to alienate Republican votes from the cause it desires to serve. The tactics which it would have voters adopt would work admirably for the Democracy,—and to that result few Republicans will be found willing to contribute.

The State Canals.

We publish today the announcement of a public meeting to be held in Rochester July 15, issued by the Commercial Union of the State of New-York. The call invites all persons interested in the improvement of the canals and their trade to be present and take part in the meeting. No subject can be of greater importance to our State and City than that of facilitating the transportation of freight along our canals. The capacity of the canals must be increased either by enlarging them or by inaugurating a system of steam navigation. If we expect to retain the transportation of the products of the West, then we must provide accommodation sufficient to compete with the railroads in dispatch and security. Every dollar of freight attracted to our canals leaves its percentage of value among our people. There is room for an extensive system of canals in addition to our railroads. Every man, woman and child in this State is interested in the measures to be adopted at the Convention at Rochester to increase the carrying facilities of our canals.

A cable telegram announces that the newspaper stamp duty is at length to be abolished in France. This will enable four-page journals, which are the almost invariable rule in Paris, to be sold at two cents of our money, instead of three as heretofore. Such a change may probably have the effect of introducing the more moderate type of newspapers among the class who have hitherto been content with the highly-spiced declamations of the Marseillaise and the Réveil. Of course every section of the Press will participate in the benefits of the change; but with the possibility of wider circulation, it becomes easier for respectable journals to sustain the competition against the unscrupulous sensationism that has lifted the organs of ROCHEFORT and the HUGOS into notice.

If popularity is a good thing, and does not entail any of that "woe" alluded to in the Scriptures, Prince ARTHUR PATRICK has been the luckiest of the Queen's sons. He seems to have not only escaped the unpleasant gossip that has followed the two other Princes, his elder brothers, but to have won the kindly feeling of all the people of the Dominion, who, if they were about to set up for themselves to-morrow, and wanted a King very badly, would surely not stand so long hesitating and chaffering about the matter as the people of old Spain have done. The Prince has got his Knighthood of St. Michael and St. George from the sword of a Nova Scotia Baronet, and will, no doubt, bear the collar of the Order as a purely American distinction.

The Union Reform Party of South Carolina, embracing "citizens of all parties and colors," have entered upon their work with vigor and resolution. Their platform is comprehensive in its scope, decided in its tone and brief in its statement. The selection, yesterday, of Judge R. B. CARPENTER, a Republican and ex-officer of the Union army, as their candidate for Governor, and of Gen. M. C. BUTLER, a prominent Ex-Confederate, for Lieutenant-Governor, is sufficiently significant of their desire to lose sight of all party differences in securing an economical and capable government for the State.

A fortnight ago a French paper made the servant of M. PREVOST PARADOL say in reply to an inquiry as to his master's whereabouts, that he had departed in so profound a state of incognito that he did not know himself where he was going. The cable now announces, however, the entertainment given him by our Consul-General in Paris, and in another fortnight he will, doubtless, present his credentials as Minister for France at Washington. The choice of M. PARADOL is as graceful a tribute to French journalism as the appointment of Mr. MOTLEY to England was to American literature. It is, besides, a token of the policy of political amnesty pursued by the French Emperor, since M. PARADOL has hitherto been nothing if not Orleanist.

According to the last official report, the total funded debt of the City and County of New-York was less than $39,000,000. To the uninitiated this may seem a large amount, but when we consider the amount of property belonging to the City, which is holden for the payment of that debt, it seems very small, and we can readily understand why the Municipal credit stands so high. Without including the Central Park, or the Croton Water-works, the City property is said to exceed $200,000,000 in value, even upon a moderate estimate. An individual whose assets were thus proportioned to his liabilities would be thought to be in a very sound financial condition. By the new City charter our finances are to be simplified by the canceling of $18,000,000 of the City and County debt, now held by the Sinking Fund, and $3,000,000 of the five per cent. City bonds due Nov. 1, 1870, will be paid in gold. Perhaps it may not be so great a consolation to tax-payers as to the City creditors to know that the annual taxes levied and collected in New-York exceed its total indebtedness.

The great Pacific Railroad, bringing us into closer contact with Chinamen and their industries, has been reducing the price of teas for some time past, and it now seems likely to bring down the prices of our boots and shoes—two results which the general public will not be disposed to quarrel with. But there are some who do not like it; and among them are the Crispinites of Massachusetts, who, being protectionists on conviction, have seen with disgust over seventy little Chinese coming into the town of North Adams, to learn their trade and do contract work for Mr. CALVIN SAMPSON, of that place. As those Mongolians are a neat-handed race, it is likely they will become excellent artisans; and in respect of manners they will be more consistent members of the "gentle craft" than the native "souters" who want to bully them. If those new-comers find good treatment at the East, they will probably open a way for a regular influx of Chinamen to these older settlements, and so bring another element of controversy into the great labor question.

The address of Secretary BELKNAP to the graduating class at West Point, on Wednesday last, of which we gave an epitome, showed that he is an intelligent and appreciative friend of the army. Young, energetic, impartial and enthusiastic in his soldierly instincts, Secretary BELKNAP is the right man in the right place. He appreciates by experience the claims of the volunteer and regular service to mutual respect. His assertion of the claims and services of the volunteer soldiers of the war ought to have, and we have no doubt will have, a salutary effect upon the minds of the young gentlemen who have just received their military credentials, and prevent that supercilious assumption of superiority to civilians which the cadet is too apt to carry away from West Point.

There comes from Germany a promise of relief from the extortionate demands of the ice companies. A certain FRANZ WINDHAUSEN, of Brunswick, has invented a new machine for freezing water without the aid of chemicals. The process takes place in a cylinder, "where the air is first powerfully condensed, then cooled by the admission of water, and finally expanded till its pressure is about equal to that of the atmosphere." By this means, it is asserted, the very astonishing result is obtained of lowering the temperature of the air to fifty degrees Celsius, (four degrees Fahrenheit,) so that when conducted in moderate quantities into a space through which water flows, "the water is almost immediately turned into ice, of which enormous blocks may be thus obtained if desired." The invention will also, it is said, be applicable to the cooling of large apartments, such as theaters, hospitals and churches.

The swiftness with which justice travels in the venerable State of New-Jersey has long since passed into proverb, to the terror of evil-doers. A fresh exemplification of it is found in the case of the notorious "TOMMY" HADDEN, whose terrible record is printed in another column. Notwithstanding the many lawless acts of this desperado, he has always commanded sufficient influence in this City to shield him from justice,—even in the case of an alleged murder. But a few days ago he fell into the hands of the New-Jersey Judges, who never think of asking what a a thief's politics are, and the result was the shortest possible cut to a trial, and a conviction and sentence, within a comparatively few hours. HADDEN'S incarceration in Trenton will protect New-York for the coming ten years at least, and by that time our own Judges may all know how to do their duty.

The Maine Republicans—Their Platform of Principles.

In the Maine Republican State Convention at Augusta, on Wednesday, the Committee on Resolutions reported the following, which were adopted:

Resolved, That we rejoice in the vast and varied natural resources of our State, and hold that it should be the constant effort of every department of the State Government, by a wise, uniform and foreseeing State policy, to develop these resources and bring them into active operation, and thus to furnish profitable employment for our industrious people and a home market for the produce of our farms, and to stay the tide of emigration from our State, and increase our wealth and population.

Resolved, That while we would maintain and preserve the sacredness of the public debt of the State and nation, and favor the gradual payment of the same according to the letter and spirit of the contract, we are also in favor of a reduction of the burdens of taxation, internal and external, so far as consistent with public credit and a wise regard to all the industrial interests of the country, and we are opposed to fostering one branch of industry at the expense of another, but hold that the burdens and the benefits should be equally distributed.

Resolved, That the shipping interests of the State and nation demand the care and protection of the Government and the adoption of such measures as shall relieve the owners and builders of vessels.

Resolved, That we renew our adhesion to the principles of prohibition and a vigorous and impartial enforcement of the laws to that end.

Resolved, That we have entire confidence in the ability, integrity and patriotism of Hon SIDNEY PERHAM, the nominee of this Convention, and that as additional evidence of the fidelity of the people of Maine to true Republican principles we propose to elect him by a triumphant majority.

The Massachusetts Modified Prohibitory Liquor Law.

From the Boston Advertiser, June 15.

The Senate and House have at last agreed on a bill modifying the present Prohibitory law. The bill exempts all malt liquors from the ban under which all intoxicating liquors except cider are now placed, and permits apothecaries to sell liquors of all kinds under license from the municipal authorities. Any town or city may, however, by vote ordain that malt liquors shall not be sold. This compromise measure was carried through the Senate by one majority, and through the House by a large but uncounted vote; and after passing through the form of enactment, it will go to the Governor for his signature. It is understood that further factious opposition to the bill will be abandoned, and thus one of the great subjects of the session is disposed of. The bill is probably wholly satisfactory to very few members of either branch, but opinions differed so widely that it is, on the whole, wonderful that any bill could have commanded a majority in both branches. A large majority of those who have been in favor of a greater or less modification of the present law have shown practical wisdom in agreeing to take what they could get when they had used every effort but had failed in obtaining what they desired.

CONTINENTAL SUMMARY.

The Legislative Body—Senatorial Salaries—Party Conversions—The Ecumenical Council—The French Plot—American Securities Abroad—The Fine Arts.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Wednesday, June 1, 1870.

The Corps Legislatif is enjoying a few days' recess. After the declaration of M. EMILE OLLIVIER that the Ministry gives itself the full term of the existence of this body—four years—to carry through the most important measures of its programme, there is no necessity for honorable Deputies to harass themselves and incur the risk of catching the small-pox in a stifling and infectious atmosphere by too close an attention to their duties. The facts brought out by M. JULES FERRY'S interpellation on the subject of the epidemic incline them all the less to this proof of self-devotion, and however the public may view the fact, all but the irreconcilables of the Chamber feel relieved by the admission of the Minister of Justice that with the success of the plebiscite all necessity for hard work during the present session has passed away. How the nation at large will like the prospect is another question. Suffice it to say that the members of the lower Chamber feel already like a parcel of emancipated schoolboys on the eve of a long holiday, and are making their preparations for an early adjournment.

SENATORIAL SALARIES.

The proposed reduction of the salary of future Senators to fifteen thousand francs does not seem to meet with very general favor. It is argued by some that as the Upper Chamber is being gradually assimilated to the English House of Lords, its members should only be chosen among those who have private fortune sufficient to support the dignity. M. DE GIRARDIN, on the other hand, contends that as the salaries of public functionaries in France are notoriously insufficient to enable them to save anything, the Government should not be deprived of a means of recompensing those who have served it faithfully. Of course, there are two sides to this argument. Unfortunately the dignity of Senator is but too frequently conferred for services of a doubtful character, and the men who, to use an English phrase, are pitchforked into that body, are not always persons whose antecedents or talents are calculated to shed lustre upon it, or to benefit the country. M. GRANIER DE CASSAGNAC takes a view of the proposed reform which, if held to be valid, will save the Commission to which the question is referred some trouble. He says that the article of the Senatus Consultum of December, 1852, by which the present annual dotation for life is accorded to the dignity of Senator, is expressly maintained by article 43 of the Constitution of the 21st of May, 1870. This would really seem to be the case, for the article in question declares that the dispositions of the Constitution of the 14th of January, 1852, and those of the Senatus Consultums promulgated since that period, "which are not comprised in the present Constitution, and which are not abrogated by the preceding article, (42,) have the force of law." Now, the previously-cited disposition of article 11 of the Senatus Consultum of the 25th of December, 1852, is not comprised in the Constitution of the 21st of May, 1870; moreover, it is not abrogated by article 42. Therefore it has the force of law, and, what is more to the point, the force of a constitutional law, which means that the dotation of 30,000 francs attached to the dignity of Senator cannot be suppressed or modified by an ordinary law. If this view of the case should prove to be correct, the change can only be effected by another Senatus Consultum—an additional evidence, if any were necessary, of the difficulty of reconciling the system of Parliamentary government with the reservations made in favor of his authority by the chief of the State.

PARTY CONVERSIONS.

There is a rumor in circulation which, if true, would go to confirm the alleged total separation of the section of the Left which acts with M. PICARD from that of the general body—a fact affirmed and contradicted so often that considerable doubt existed on the subject. The statement to which I refer is this, that the Constitutional Left is about to inscribe in its programme the declaration that the majority given by the plebiscite to the Empire cannot be contested without offering an offense to universal suffrage itself, and that consequently the Deputies of the Left are constrained either to accept the Constitution voted by more than seven millions of electors or to offer their resignation to their constituents. I know not what foundation there may be for this statement, but every well wisher to the cause of rational liberty in France will join with me in the hope that it is true. Should it prove so, it will natually lead to an irreparable schism in the ranks of the opposition, for the irreconcilables will never consent to such an alternative as it suggests.

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL.

The speech delivered by the Archbishop of Paris before the Council at Rome, on the 20th of May, has created a general feeling of satisfaction here, while in Rome it is said to have caused a corresponding feeling of dismay and apprehension. Let me reproduce a few passages of it to give you an idea of its importance.

His Grace commenced by protesting energetically against the violent and irregular introduction of the question of infallibility, for which it had been found necessary to put aside all the work begun during the previous five months. He then attacked the schema itself, and more especially the chapter relating to infallibility. He showed that the question had been badly started; that it was put in an equivocal form, and he called on its authors to explain themselves. There was no mention made in it of the Bishops; the Pope alone was alluded to, and yet, said Mr. DARBOY, its authors professed that they did not desire a separate infallibility. The word "personal" did not even suit them; they had so declared. In presence of these facts it became necessary for the Council to know what was expected of it. He called upon the authors of the schema to explain themselves. The Bishops, the Catholic episcopacy, were they to be counted for nothing or for something in the definitions of faith? There lay the question. The Archbishop then addressed himself to the inopportuneness of the introduction of the dogma, and as a man who knew his times and his country, he declared to the Fathers that this definition appeared to him full of perils and misfortunes.

The speech produced a profound impression, and on quitting the Council several of the Bishops, strong partisans of the infallibility doctrine, declared that after hearing it, it had become evident to them that the definition would cause more evil than good; that it was better to leave things as they were, and not run the risk of casting the Church into such an abyss.

THE FRENCH PLOT.

It would really seem that the Government has some intention of putting the alleged authors of the two last complots on trial. On Monday last, according to the Droit, the Chamber Des Mises en Accusation, of the High Court of Justice, held a sitting at which the Procureur-General GRANDPERRET and M. DUPRE LASALLE, Premier Avocat-General of the Imperial Court, were present. The latter official presented a report, the reading of which occupied three hours and a quarter, and deposited the requisitions of the Procureur-General relative to the seventy-three persons implicated in the plots of February and April last and in the acts connected with the latter. The Court adjourned to a proximate sitting the examination of the documents deposited with it, and it is expected that it will deliver its decision in regard to them early next week. In the meanwhile, the Rappel announces that about twenty of the persons charged with being implicated in these plots, including MM. PROTOT and ADOLPHE ROBIN, have just been set at liberty. M. ROBERT had been incarcerated nearly four months, and has yet to learn the nature of the evidence on which he was arrested. M. GROMIER, who is at present in the infirmary at Mazas, writes to one of the journals of this morning to say that it is evident that he has been kept in prison only because he was knocked down without cause on the 8th of February last. "The instruction of our apocryphal attempt."

A British Captain Runs Away with His Ship from San Francisco.

From the San Francisco Alta, June 7.

The British ship William Wilson, Capt. MELBURN, was seized last Saturday by order of Judge HOFFMAN, of the United States District Court, and placed in the care of a United States Deputy Marshal. A sailor had brought suit against the vessel for wages alleged to be due him, and on this the seizure was made. Between 4 and 5 o'clock on Saturday evening, Mr. A. C. TAYLOR, United States Deputy Marshal, armed with the order of the Court, and accompanied by Mr. STEPHEN S. BALK, also a Deputy Marshal, took a boat and went out to the William Wilson, which was lying in the stream. On going alongside they aked for a line, stating that they were United States Marshals, which was refused by the mate. The officers finally clambored on the vessel and read their warrant, and told the mate that by virtue of the order of the Court they seized the ship in the name of the United States. Mr. BALK was left in charge, and Mr. TAYLOR returned to the city to make his report of the seizure.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock A. M. on Sunday morning, Capt. MILBURN came alongside in a Whitehall boat, accompanied by his wife and children. When he came aboard Mr. BALK read him the warrant and called his attention to the fact that he was a United States Marshal and had possession of the ship. The Captain replied that he did not care for the warrant, and that he would take the ship to sea in defiance of it. He said he knew he was violating the law, but he cared nothing for our laws, and for the Marshal to help himself if he could. Mr. BALK paid no attention to these threats, as the ship was at anchor and no effort was made to weigh anchor and set sail.

The steam-tug Lookout approached the vessel between 4 and 5 o'clock A. M. Mr. BALK attempted to make a signal to those on the tug, when he was set upon by the crew and violently thrown down on the deck. He then went upon the topgallant forecastle and called out to those on the tug, and waved his handkerchief to attract their attention. The crew were then weighing anchor, and the Marshal determined to call the tug-boat to his aid. The mate, accompanied by several of the crew, again assaulted Mr. BALK, and attempted to take the handkerchief from him. He held to it, and it was torn in two. He waved the fragment retained and called loudly for help. The mate now came up and dealt him a powerful blow in the face, and the men kicked and beat him in a brutal manner, blacking one of his eyes and kicking one of his double teeth completely out of his jaw. He was also severely bruised on the body and arms. The ruffians now seized the Marshal and threw him to the deck, a distance of about seven feet, when he was held down by the men until the anchor was weighed, and the ship was being towed out to sea.

Marshal BALK says there was a special officer on board, but as soon as the difficulty occurred, he made himself scarce. The officer, Mr. STEVENS, hail boat, which brought the Captain and his family on board, asked the Captain for their pay, as they wanted to go ashore. He told them to wait, as he had business for them. This was before the tug came up.

Marshal BALK was taken out nearly to the Farallones, and then placed in the Whitehall boat and ordered taken to the tug. As soon as he set foot on the lookout a line was attached and the Whitehall boat fell back to the stern in tow. He stated his case to the captain of the lookout and asked him if he did not hear his calls and see his signals. The captain said that he did not, but that he saw the trouble on board. He thought nothing of this, as such difficulties frequently occur between the officers and crews while weighing anchor. The tug arrived at the city front about 10½ o'clock Sunday morning, and Mr. BALK asked that he be allowed to communicate with the men in the Whitehall boat, as he was confident they were in the plot. This request was not granted, and when opposite North Point the Whitehall boat cut loose and went ashore.

As soon as he landed, Marshal BALK reported to his superior officer, and then went to his home. He has been confined to his room ever since from the effects of the injuries received. The above facts were given us by Mr. BALK himself, and he still bears the marks of the kicks and blows received in the encounter.

Last evening the revenue-cutter Lincoln slipped out of the harbor very slyly, and it is supposed that she has gone in pursuit of the William Wilson.

Excursion of the Seventh Regiment Veterans—A Pleasant Time at Long Branch.

Agreeably to previous arrangements the veteran members of the Seventh Regiment proceeded upon their first annual excursion yesterday, the objective point being Long Branch, and the entire affair a success. The veterans assembled at 8 A. M., at the Armory of their regiment, and soon after took up the line of march for the boat Jessie Hoyt, lying at the foot of Warren-street. There were fully 400 gentlemen in the moving battalion, and they were warmly received by the spectators in Broadway. When the excursionists arrived at the dock, they found fully 100 of their brethren awaiting them, thus swelling the number of the party to fully 500. GRAFULLA'S splendid band of fifty-six pieces, headed by Drum-Major JOHN SMITH, was engaged, and afforded some delightful music on the down trip, which was a most agreeable one, the members, despite their supposed age, enjoying a very pleasant time. The train at Port Monmouth was an exceedingly cumbrous one, owing to the increased number of the passengers, and it was not until noon that the "vets" found themselves at the Continental Hotel on the "beach at Long Branch."

The Committee of Arrangements had decided that a series of photographs should be taken of the party prior to a clam-bake, and that a good dinner should terminate the day's proceedings. The photographs were taken in due tame by FREDRICKS, but the hotel proprietor saw fit to compress his culinary arrangements into a fish dinner, of the most meagre description, thereby annoying the Committee, and the veterans especially, as it was understood that the pecuniary arrangements had been on the most liberal scale.

As soon as the bill of fare was exhausted an abundance of wine was placed in circulation, and speeches were made by Gen. Lefferts, Col. Vermilye, Col. Jackson Shultz, Col. Loutrell, Gen. Viele, Capt. Shumway, Col. Okie, and others, who are prominent in the organization. The tone of these addresses were full of love for the Seventh and its great record in the past, and the words of the speakers caused great enthusiasm.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent by the members in individual enjoyment, the band furnishing its full quota to the amusements of the hour. The regular 7 o'clock train carried the veterans away from the Branch, and they arrived in the City at 10 P. M. Owing to a misunderstanding, the special boat engaged was not at hand, and the party landed at Warren-street, instead of Twenty-third-street, so that they were not received by the Ninth Regiment, as was intended.

THE BEETHOVEN FESTIVAL.

The audience assembled in the Coliseum during the afternoon concert was quite large. The programme, which was of a classical order, was arranged as follows:

PART I.

Fifth Symphony (the entire work).....Beethoven
Aria, "Il Mio Tesoro".....Mozart
Signor P. Brignoli.
Chorus, "Hallelujah".....Handel
Finale, "Attila".....Verdi
Gilmore's Band.

PART II.

Overture, "Fidelio".....Beethoven
Song, "With Verdure Clad," (Creation).....Haydn
Mme. Anna Bishop.
Chorus, Anvil, "Trovatore".....Verdi
Romance, "M'Appari," (Martha).....Flotow
Signor P. Brignoli.
Grand March, "Coronation," (Prophete)...Meyerbeer
Soldier's Chorus, (Faust).....Gounod

The special success of the day was won by Signor BRIGNOLI, whose aria, "Il Mio Tesoro," showed the flexibility of the artist's very sweet voice, and whose suave rendering of "M'Appari, tutti Amor," reminded one of early triumphs, to which the unimpaired beauty of his tones still entitle him. Mme. ANNA BISHOP'S thorough culture was naturally distinguishable in all her performances. The "Soldiers' Chorus," though given with precision and force, did not produce the full effect looked for.

YESTERDAY EVENING.

The programme was more varied and more interesting than that offered during the day. It embraced the selections subjoined:

PART I.

Excerpts from "Elijah".....Mendelssohn
Mme. Parepa-Rosa, Miss Nettie Sterling, Messrs. Castle and Whitney.

PART II.

Overture, "Jubilee".....Theodore Berthold
"Let the Bright Seraphim".....Handel
Mme. Parepa-Rosa.
With Trumpet Obligato, by Mr. A. M. Arbuckle.
Grand Selection, "Martha".....Flotow
Song, "La Donna e Mobile".....Verdi
Signor Filippi.
Overture, "Der Freischutz".....Weber
"Erie Galop".....Maretzek

The idea that suggested a partial rendering of the oratorio was a thoroughly good one. Mme. PAREPA-ROSA sang superbly, and was most efficiently seconded by her associate artists, Mr. CASTLE being heard for the first time during the Festival. In the aria "Let the Bright Seraphim," Mme. ROSA surpassed herself, Mr. ARBUCKLE'S accompaniment being admirably rendered in point of truthfulness of intonation and vigor and purity of sound. Signor FILIPPI'S execution of "La Donna e Mobile" denoted the experience of a tried artist. The dashing "Erie Gallop," with the orchestra spurred on by the magnetism of the baton of the composer, Mr. MAX MARETZEK, brought the concert to a brilliant close. Today and to-night there will be concerts, bringing in the services of almost all the singers. The quintet of "Hernani" will, this afternoon, be given for the first time, Signor ADOLPH RANDOLFI personating Carlo Quinto. After the ceremonies at the Coliseum were ended, last evening, we have to add, GILMORE'S full band serenaded Mme. ROSA at the Fifth-avenue Hotel.

Queens County Horticultural Fair—List of Premiums Awarded.

The fourth Horticultural Fair and show of vegetables, strawberries, hot-house grapes, flowers, &c., of the Queens County Agricultural Society was held, yesterday, at their grounds at Mineola, L. I.

Fully 1,500 people were present, most of them, we presume, (to judge from the crowded state of the Long Island Railroad cars,) from New-York and Brooklyn. The exhibition, contrary to all expectations, was not as extensive as it might have been, but, nevertheless, a finer collection of specimens we have never seen. In themselves they speak volumes of the industry, skill and perseverance that have always characterized the Long Island farmer.

The following is a list of the premiums awarded:

CLASS 1—VEGETABLES.

Best collection of vegetables, raised by the exhibitor, not less than twelve varieties; prize, $5; awarded to John Brown, of Great Neck.

Best three Cauliflowers; prize, $2; awarded to John Brown.

Best three bunches of Rhubarb; prize, $2; awarded to John G. Debevoise, of Newtown.

Best three bunches of Asparagus; prize, $2; awarded to Benj. C. Underhill, Oyster Bay.

Best half peck of Peas (in pods;) prize, $2; awarded to S. M. Titus, Glen Cove.

Best variety of Cabbages; prize, $2; awarded to John Brown.

Best dish of Cucumbers; prize, $2; awarded to John Brown.

Best collection of Lettuce; prize, $2; awarded to John Brown.

Best collection of Radishes; prize, $2; awarded to John Brown.

Best display of Potatoes; prize, $3; awarded to John Brown.

Second best; prize, $2; awarded to Mrs. R. G. Anderson, Hempstead.

Best variety of Spinach; prize, $2; awarded to John Brown.

Best variety Beets; prize, $2; awarded to C. S. Lewis, Locust Valley.

Best variety of Onions; prize, $2; awarded to C. S. Lewis, Locust Valley.

CLASS 2—FRUIT.

Best six varieties of Strawberries, one pint each; prize, $5; awarded to C. P. Seaman, Ridgewood.

Best quart of "Agriculturist" Berries; prize, $2; awarded to Benj. C. Underhill, Oyster Bay.

Best quart "Jucunda;" prize, $2; awarded to C. E. Dickenson, Oyster Bay.

Best quart of "General Scott;" prize, $2; awarded to Wm. A. Burgess, Glen Cove.

Best quart "Austin;" prize, $2; awarded to L. B. Prince, Flushing.

Best quart of "General Downing;" prize, $2; awarded to Wm. A. Burgess, Glen Cove.

Best six heaviest Berries; prize, $2; awarded to Allen H. Bogart, Roslyn.

Best three Seedlings; prize, $2; awarded to William A. Burgess, Glen Cove.

Best New Variety; prize, $2; awarded to William A. Burgess, Glen Cove.

Best collection of Gooseberries; prize, $2; awarded to Benjamin Hunt.

Best collection of Currants; prize, $2; awarded to William E. Titus, Mineola.

Best Hot-house Lemons; prize, $3; awarded to Emeline Gildersleeve, Hempstead.

CLASS 3—FLOWERS.

Special premium by John A. King, Esq., Great Neck, for Best Floral Design; prize, $10; awarded to John Brown, Great Neck.

Best Floral Design, evincing originality and taste; prize, $25; awarded to Messrs. Allen & Co., of Queens Village.

Best variety of Cut Flowers; prize, $5; awarded to Isaac Hicks & Son.

Second best variety of Cut Flowers; prize, $3; awarded to Wm. A. Burgess.

Best collection of Roses; prize, $5; awarded to W. A. Burgess.

Best Floral Basket; prize, $3; awarded to Allen & Co., Queens Village.

Second best Floral Basket; prize, $2; awarded to Richard Valentine, Mineola.

Best pair Parlor Bouquets; prize, $3; awarded to John Brown.

Best pair Hand Bouquets; prize, $2; awarded to John Brown.

Second best pair Hand Bouquets; prize, $1; awarded to T. W. Albertson, Mineola.

Best collection Pansies; prize, $2; awarded to Isaac Hicks & Son.

Best collection of Peonies; prize, $2; awarded to Allen & Co., Queens Village.

Best four Fuschias, (in pots;) prize, $3; awarded to Mrs. E. Titus, Mineola.

Best four Geraniums (in pots;) prize, $3; awarded to Isabella Armstrong, Mineola.

Best collection of hot-house plants, not less than twelve; prize, $10; awarded to Richard Valentine, Mineola.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Two beautiful new flowering plants were exhibited by Messrs. Allen & Co., of Queens Village, viz.: "Crinum Americanus" and "Lilium Auratum," which they recommended as a valuable addition to our nursery.

Wm. A. Burgess also exhibited some very fine Sweet Williams; also a vase of roses, containing his beautiful seedling rose, resembling the "Grant der Battailles;" also "Marachel Niel" and the "Virginia."

Mr. Thomas Clapham, Roslyn, exhibited three very fine Fuschias, (in pots.) There not being the requisite number, the judges could not award the premium. There was also at the Fair a fine specimen of tree fern and two cotton plants, from the same exhibitor.

Mr. C. S. Lewis exhibited a fine tobacco plant.

The Stevens Will Case.

The suit of Mrs. MARTHA B. STEVENS, widow of EDWIN A. STEVENS, against the executors of the estate of her husband, in the Court of Chancery of New-Jersey, has been indefinitely postponed. The suit is brought to have the Court determine whether the charitable bequests, especially the gift of the Stevens Battery to the State of New-Jersey, is valid. The amount involved is over $2,000,000. The case was set down for argument before the Chancellor, in Chambers, at Jersey City, yesterday, but the failure of the Lower House of Congress to concur with the Senate in granting permission to the State of New-Jersey to receive the gift, necessitated a further postponement, until such time as the House of Representatives shall take action upon the Senate resolution.

Juvenile Beethovenites.

A Juvenile Beethoven Festival was given by the children of the Tenth Ward Schools Nos. 42, 20 and 7, at Steinway Hall, last evening. The Hall was crowded with the friends of the pupils, while the enlarged stage showed a confused mass of white dresses, curls, pantaloons, &c. The songs were well rendered, the children being evidently well trained and disciplined. Messrs. S. P. WARREN, BECKET and EDWARD HOFFMAN assisted effectively. Mr. GEORGE F. BRISTOW acted as the conductor, and Mr. HARRISON made a short address at the close of the First Part.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION

SENATE.....WASHINGTON, Thursday, June 16.

Mr. CORBETT, from the Committee on Commerce, reported a substitute for the bill to facilitate the transportation of European, Asiatic and Australian merchandise to interior cities of the United States and across the continent. Mr. CORBETT made a statement in correction of the newspaper report of the amendments of the Committee on Commerce to the bill authorizing the establishment of an ocean mail steam-ship service between the United States and Australia. He stated that the amount of subsidy had been reduced from $500,000 to $300,000, and was to be on the condition that the Australian colonies give a similar amount. The substitute provides only for transportation of goods in bond across the continent, and not to interior cities as provided in the original bill.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. CHANDLER, from the Committee on Commerce, reported a joint resolution pledging the faith of the Government to construct a suitable breakwater and harbor of refuge at the eastern entrance of the proposed Cape Cod Ship Canal, to be ready for use on its completion, provided that the entire expense of the Government for such breakwater and harbor of refuge shall not exceed $2,000,000, and that the said ship canal shall be forever free to the vessels and property of the United States.

Mr. CHANDLER, from the same Committee, reported without amendment the bill to repeal the act of March 17, 1800, declaring the assent of Congress to certain acts of the States of Maryland and Georgia.

OFFENDED DIGNITY.

Mr. DRAKE, a member of the Committee of Conference appointed on the Invalid Pension Appropriation bill, stated that the House of Representatives, after being informed of the appointment of new managers on the part of the Senate, had, contrary to all parliamentary comity, reappointed their original managers. The Senate Committee did not feel disposed to submit to what they considered an indignity put upon the Senate by the House, and therefore asked to be excused from further service. The Committee were excused, and Messrs. MORRILL of Maine, NYE and STOCKTON substituted in their places.

OLD ORDNANCE FOR MONUMENTS.

Mr. WILSON called up a bill granting condemned cannon for a soldiers' monument in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

On motion of Mr. SHERMAN, the bill was made general to cover a large number of similar grants, by authorizing the Secretary of War to deliver to any city or municipality condemned iron or cannon for soldiers' monuments when not detrimental to the public service. The amended bill then passed.

BILLS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill to authorize the entrance of a lateral branch of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad into the City of Washington. Referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. VICKERS presented the memorial of the Board of Trade of Baltimore for an appropriation to deepen the Patapsco River and improve the channel of Chesapeake Bay. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

Mr. PATTERSON called up the House bill to establish a Department of Justice. Passed.

The bill creates a new department, with the Attorney-General at the head, assisted by a Solicitor-General and two assistants. It transfers to this department the Solicitors of the Treasury and Internal Revenue, and the Naval solicitor, their assistants and employes, and the Examiner of Claims in the State Department, the object being to facilitate the transaction of business pertaining to these offices.

THE FRANKING BILL.

At 1 o'clock the Franking bill again came up as the regular order of business.

Mr. TIPTON addressed the Senate in explanation of his views, claiming that the people were entitled to the privilege of communicating with their representatives free of cost, and that liberal allowances of postage stamps would not effect any saving to the Government.

Mr. HARLAN believed that a stamped-envelope system would remedy the alleged abuses by affording outside parties less opportunity to commit frauds by the forging of franks and otherwise.

Mr. STEWART said it was admitted on all hands the bill ought not to pass without a substitute to take the place of the franking system, and in the brief period of the session yet remaining Congress would not have an opportunity to pass the necessary supplemental legislation. He advocated the postponement of the measure until next session, to give members an opportunity of consulting their constituents upon it. The passage of the bill had been urged by some Senators as a means of punishing the House for the hasty and ill-considered manner in which it sent the bill to the Senate. He regarded such considerations as mere child's play.

Mr. HOWE advocated the passage of the bill without delay or amendment, remarking that he had been in favor of the abolition of the franking privilege for six years. He replied at length to the arguments against the bill, doubting the sincerity of the argument that the privilege was necessary to enable members to disseminate intelligence, inasmuch as Congress was not a convocation of school-masters.

Mr. VICKERS gave notice of a motion to recommit the bill to the Postal Committee, with instructions to report a bill securing the Post-office from frauds and abuses, providing for a substitute or a reasonable exercise of the franking privilege by persons now entitled to it, and to inquire whether the privilege can be curtailed and postage reduced without detriment to the public service.

Mr. STOCKTON believed the repeal of the franking privilege to have been demanded by the people in their petitions, and that the people were nauseated with stuff called political argument sent out from Washington. He thought Congress would find they were in earnest in their demand for a repeal. His inference was that the Senate was disposed not to vote upon the bill, but to worry it as a dog would worry a cat, that it might die in spasms.

Mr. BAYARD criticised the efforts of the Post-master-General in agitating the repeal by means of circulars and petitions as a cheap and spurious mode for popularity. He hoped such action would be considered by Congress, and that an officer of the Cabinet who undertook to coerce Congress would be answered as he deserved.

At 4:40 o'clock the Senate voted upon Mr. STEWART'S motion to postpone the subject till next session, and it was rejected—Yeas 17, nays 34.

Mr. DRAKE'S amendment continuing the present provisions of the law relative to the free transmission of newspapers was adopted—yeas 36, nays 17.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, offered his amendment continuing the franking privilege to persons upon whom it was especially conferred by law, to the Executive Departments and the Agricultural Department, remarking that his object was to take away the franking privilege from all members of Congress and from Post-masters.

Mr. SUMNER gave notice that he would move a substitute for the entire bill.

Without a vote upon the pending amendment the Senate, at 5 o'clock, adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Petitions were presented as follows:

By Mr. BROOKS, of New-York—Of merchants of New-York and Boston for drawback on cotton goods exported to China after June, 1868. Commissioner ROLLINS having thus authorized their exportation under a drawback of 2¼ cents per pound.

By Mr. CALKIN—Of citizens of New-York for a uniform rate of 16 cents per pound on manufactured tobacco and snuff.

By Mr. REAVES—Of Marine Insurance Companies for a break-water off the entrance to Port Jefferson Harbor, Long Island Sound.

FREE COAL.

Mr. SCHENCK, from the Committee of Ways and Means, reported the bill to abolish the duty on coal, to put it on the free list in this form: "Coal, bituminous and of every other kind."

The bill was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

THE CUBAN RESOLUTIONS.

The House then proceeded to vote on the Cuban resolutions, the first vote being on Mr. LOGAN'S amendment to construe the Neutrality bill so as to give to both contending parties the same advantages of intercourse and trade with the United States, consistent with the law of nations, that have been or may be conceded to the Government of Spain. Rejected—yeas 77, nays 101.

The next vote was on the substitute offered by Mr. BINGHAM. Pending the vote, Mr. MAYNARD moved that the whole subject be laid on the table. Rejected—23 to 94. Mr. BINGHAM'S substitute for the resolution reported by the minority of the Committee was agreed to—100 to 17.

The next question was on substituting Mr. BINGHAM'S substitute for the resolution reported by the majority of the Committee. On a count by the Speaker there were 70 ayes and 68 nays. The yeas and nays were called for. The substitute was agreed to—yeas 102, nays 88, as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Allison, Ambler, Ames, Armstrong, Asper, Atwood, Beaman, Benjamin, Bowles, Bingham, Brooks of Massachusetts, Buckley, Buffinton, Burchard, Butler of Tennessee, Cake, Cessna, Churchill, Clark of Texas, Coburn, Cook, Conger, Covode, Cowles, Dawes of Massachusetts, Dickey, Dixon, Dockery, Donley, Duval, Dyer, Eld, Farnsworth, Ferry, Fisher, Garfield, Hale, Harris, Hawkins, Heplin, Hill, Hoar, Hooper, Hotchkiss, Judd, Kelly, Kellogg, Kelsey, Ketchum, Knapp, Ladin, Lawrence, Maynard, Merriam, McCrary, McGrew, Mercur, Moore of Ohio, Moore of Illinois, Moore of New-Jersey, Morrell of Pennsylvania, Negley, O'Neil, Orth, Packard, Packer, Palmer, Perce, Phelps, Platt, Poland, Pomeroy, Rogers, Sargent, Sawyer, Schenck, Scofield, Smith of Ohio, Smith of Tennessee, Smyth of Iowa, Starkweather, Stokes, Stoughton, Strickland, Strong, Taffe, Tanner, Tillman, Townsend, Trimble, Tyner, Upson, Ward, Welch, Whitemore of Wisconsin, Washburn of Massachusetts, Walker, Wheeler, Whitmore, Willard, Wilson of Ohio, Winans, Wisbner—122.

NAYS—Messrs. Adams, Archer, Axtell, Bailey, Banks, Barry, Beatty, Beck, Biggs, Bird, Blair, Booker, Boyd, Brooks of New-York, Buck, Burdett, Burr, Butler of Massachusetts, Calkin, Clarke of Kansas, Cobb of Wisconsin, Cobb of North Carolina, Conner, Cox, Cullom, Degener, Dickinson, Dox, Eldridge, Ferris, Finkelnburg, Fitch, Fox, Getz, Gibson, Griswold, Haight, Hamill, Hamilton of Florida, Hay, Holman, Ingersoll, Johnson, Julian, Kerr, Knott, Lash, Lewis, Logan, Marshall, Mayham, McKee, McKenzie, McNeely, Milnes, Morgan, Morphis, Morrissey, Mungen, Newham, Niblack, Paine, Porter, Potter, Prosser, Randall, Reeves, Rice, Roots, Schumaker, Shanks, Sheldon of Louisiana, Sheldon of New-York, Shober, Smith of Oregon, Stiles, Strader, Swann, Sweeney, Taylor, Trimble, Van Trump, Wells, Wilson of Minnesota, Winchester, Wood, Woodward—88.

Mr. BEAMAN then moved to lay the whole subject on the table. Rejected. The resolution as amended, was then agreed to, so that Mr. BINGHAM'S amendment is the form in which the resolution has passed.

THE PENSION APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. KELSEY, from the Conference Committee on the Pension Appropriation bill, reported that the Committee had not been able to agree, the Senate insisting on striking out the appropriation for naval pensions and leaving them to be paid out of the Naval Pension fund, which is kept apart in the Navy Department, and the House insisting on their being paid like all other pensions, and on the Naval Pension fund being covered into the Treasury. After considerable debate, the House refused to concur with the Senate by yeas 66 to nays 89, and insisted upon its own position.

Before the announcement of the vote, it appeared that Mr. BINGHAM, whose name had been recorded, had not been in the hall when the vote was being taken, and that some person had voted for him—an incident which drew forth remarks from the Speaker as to the vicious habits in connection with taking the yeas and nays, and the expression of a hope from Mr. BROOKS, of New-York, that they would not hear any more about New-York repeaters. [Laughter.]

MR. PORTER'S ASSAILANT.

Mr. BINGHAM, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, offered a resolution directing the Sergeant-at-Arms, or his assistant, Mr. LE BARNES, to take PATRICK WOODS, now in custody for an assault on a member of the House, (Mr. PORTER,) to Richmond, Va., there to testify in a murder case before the Hustings Court, and after he shall so testify to bring him back to Washington. It was agreed to.

UTAH CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Mr. WHEELER, Chairman of the Committee on the Pacific Railroad, reported a bill granting to the Utah Central Railroad Company the right of way through the public lands for the construction of a railroad and telegraph from Ogden City to Salt Lake City. After an explanation by Mr. WHEELER the bill was passed.

YERBA BUENA.

Mr. WHEELER also reported a bill granting the Island of Yerba Buena, or Goat Island, in San Francisco Bay, to the Western Pacific Railroad Company, for a terminus; provided that half of the island shall be reserved to the United States for fortifications and military purposes, and that nothing in the bill shall impair the lawful or equitable rights of private parties to the island.

Mr. WHEELER explained and advocated the bill.

Mr. KNOTT moved to amend by requiring payment to the Government of $2,000,000, and advocated the amendment. He was informed that the island was worth $5,000,000, and that if put up at a Sheriff's sale to-morrow the first bid would be $1,000,000, and he thought that if there was any corporation on earth that was able to buy and pay for it, it was that enormous corporation.

Mr. AXTELL supported the bill and reminded the House that there was no proposition from the Government to sell that island. One-half of it, with a railroad to and across it, would be more valuable to the Government than the whole island was now. It would be a great public convenience, and those who so opposed the bill opposed the true interests of San Francisco, and the true interests of the Government.

Mr. MAYNARD offered an amendment requiring the Company to erect, whenever necessary, a draw-bridge over such part of the channel as the engineer of the Department may direct. Agreed to.

Mr. HOLMAN, in order to defeat the bill, moved an adjournment. Negatived.

Mr. HOLMAN then moved to lay the bill on the table. Negatived by yeas 65, nays 96.

The previous question was moved.

The vote was then taken on Mr. KNOTT'S amendment requiring a payment of $2,000,000, and it was rejected—yeas 75, nays 91.

After several votes by yeas and nays on various propositions connected with the bill, Mr. WASHBURN, of Wisconsin, asked for fifteen minutes to state his objections to it.

Mr. WHEELER insisted on the previous question, which was seconded.

Mr. WOOD suggested that if it were in order for him to offer two millions for the island proposed to be given away to this railroad company, he would now make that proposition to the Government.

Mr. MUNGEN said he would "see" that and "go" half a million better, paying the money in ten hours.

During an interruption to the voting, Mr. DAWES, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported a bill to allow six dollars per day to Registers and Sheriffs in the Fifth Military District, which was passed.

On motion of Mr. BENJAMIN, the Senate amendments to the bill defining the duties of Pension Agents, &c., were non-concurred in, and a committee of conference ordered.

The House then, at 4:40 o'clock, adjourned, the Speaker stating that the Yerba Buena bill would remain the business in the morning hour until disposed of.

Mariners' Family Asylum at Staten Island.

The managers of the Mariners' Family Industrial Society of the port of New-York are holding their annual fair at their Asylum, on the seamen's retreat grounds, near Vanderbilt's Landing, Staten Island. The fair commenced on Wednesday afternoon, and will be closed to-morrow evening. Yesterday afternoon the anniversary exercises were held in front of the Asylum, where a platform had been erected in the garden. A large audience was present from this City and Brooklyn. Mr. RICHARD J. THORNE conducted the exercises, and Mr. W. D. HARMAN read the annual reports of the Secretary and Treasurer. The former report showed that the number of inmates at the Asylum are fifty-six at present, besides the matron and servants. During the past year six were admitted, and three died. The Treasurer's report showed that the total amount of receipts was $4,246 58, and that of expenditures $1,022 29. By the late Legislature $2,500 were appropriated for the benefit of the Asylum. Mrs. S. SANGER and Miss RITTA BRONSON, both of this City, entertained the audience with songs at the opening and close, and at the several pauses of the exercises, and among them with the "Star Spangled Banner," in which the audience joined. Rev. Mr. BASWELL, of Brooklyn, and Rev. Dr. HODGE, of this City, delivered addresses, and the exercises were opened with prayer and concluded with the benediction. The following officers of the Society were re-elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. C. W. HAWKINS, of Brooklyn, First Directress; Mrs. Capt. A. A. CORNING, of Brooklyn, Second Directress; Mrs. D. V. HUSH, of Brooklyn, Secretary; Mrs. G. W. JOHNSON, of Stamford, Conn., Treasurer. Besides these officers, there were twenty-nine additional lady managers elected.

The following letter from CARL ZERRAHN, Conductor of the Handel and Haydn Society of Boston, and one of the leading musicians of the country, now conducting the chorus in the Beethoven Centennial Jubilee, should have weight with intelligent musicians:

Messrs. S. D. & H. W. SMITH—Gentlemen: My attention was particularly called to your American Organ by one which was used in the public performance recently of the oratorio of the "Creation," under my conductorship. It rendered valuable service in the support of the choruses and accompaniments of the recitatives.

The purity and sweetness of tone were excellent, and it was especially struck with the great power of the sub-bass notes. This has led me to make a careful examination of your different styles of organs and the interior workmanship at your manufactory.

The quality of tone bears the closest resemblance to the pipe organ, and I cheerfully testify to their great superiority in this respect, as well as in the finish of the mechanical parts.

Respectfully yours, CARL ZERRAHN.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Only one sale was effected at the Exchange salesroom yesterday, and that the following: ADRIAN H. MULLER, of the firm of MULLER, WILKINS & CO., sold, by order of the Supreme Court, under the direction of SAMUEL WOOD, Esq., referee, the five-story brick house at the north-west corner of Nassau and Ann streets. The building comprises No. 107 Nassau-street and Nos. 25 and 27 Ann-street. The lot measures 34.9 feet on Nassau-street, 70.7 feet on Ann-street, 44.1 feet in the rear of Nassau-street, and 70 feet on the north line. On the house there is a ten years' lease at $9,000 a year, expiring May 1, 1876. The terms were 60 ₱ cent. of the purchase-money to remain on bond and mortgage three or five years. Mr. H. L. KIPP bought the property for $75,250.

☞The sale of the first subdivision of Grand-park property, located at Mamaroneck, Westchester County, which took place yesterday, was one of the most remarkable sales of the season. The attendance was extremely large, seven car loads of people going out from the City, while nearly every one that could obtain a conveyance seemed to make the day a general holiday. There were probably 3,000 persons on the ground. Only one hundred lots were disposed of and the lowest-priced piece of ground sold, brought $500. The aggregate of sales for the day will exceed the large amount of $115,000, the lots averaging over $1,100 apiece. Although the property is beautifully located and considerable money has already been laid out to good advantage, still the success of the sale and the eager desire manifested to gain possession of the lots by those present, was a surprise to all, and to no one more so than to Mr. ANDREW WILSON, Jr., the manager of the enterprise, who expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the result. The houses sold are new, having been erected to add to the general attractiveness of the landscape. The entire proceeds of two of the lots sold, amounting to $1,500 and $1,000 in order, were given to the Episcopal and Methodist Churches of Mamaroneck. The whole affair was a grand success, and those interested may well feel satisfied with the transactions effected. A more particular reference to this sale will be made to-morrow, the details of which will be found in full below.

FINANCIAL.

WE OFFER FOR SALE

$600,000

Evansville, Henderson, and Nashville Railroad of Kentucky 1st Mortgage Bonds, due in 1897, bearing interest at 7 per cent. per annum, payable on the 1st days of January and July, at the Bank of America, New-York.

The line of this Road extends from Henderson, on the Ohio River, to the State line of Tennessee, passing through the coal fields of Western Kentucky, and forming important connections with Chicago, Nashville, the South and East. Sixty-three miles are completed at a cost of $2,000,000 raised almost entirely from stock subscriptions, leaving only thirty-three miles to be built, of which twenty-three miles are now graded and under contract. The first and only mortgage of all the property and franchises of the Company is for One Million of Dollars, payable as above. The proceeds of the sale will be applied by J. Edgar Thomson, Esq., of Philadelphia, the Trustee of the Company, to finish the work, for which purpose, with the other resources at command, they are amply sufficient. The net earnings of the Road are now quite large, and by the middle of June the coal fields will be reached, which will increase them materially. There is no reasonable doubt that the extensive local traffic of this Road, added to its important connections, will make it abundantly remunerative to the stockholders. $400,000 of this Loan have already been negotiated, and the remainder will be sold, for the present, at $92 and accrued interest, at which rate they constitute a safe and desirable investment.

Further particulars will be furnished on application to us.

NOTICE TO TRAVELERS.
Families or gentlemen going to travel on the Continent of Europe, who can afford the expense of a courier, should never leave Paris without one; their services are invaluable in selecting the traveler from the multiplicity of cares and troubles respecting passports, examination and conveyance of baggage; in securing the best accommodation, in protecting the traveler from imposition, and an infinity of annoyances to which they are exposed in various parts of the Continent. Competent and trustworthy couriers and traveling servants may always be obtained by applying to the COURIER SOCIETY, No. 3 Rue d'Alger, near the Tuileries Garden, Paris.

WEST POINT.

Close of the Ball at Daylight—The Bearing of the Graduates—Further Examinations—The "Plebes."—Movements of the Prominent Visitors—Farewell Parade.

From Our Special Correspondent.

WEST POINT, Thursday, June 16, 1870.

The early birds had begun their morning song when the last of the gay company left COZZENS' and the brilliant ball was closed. The day opened with mists and shower-clouds, but withal cool, pure and gentle breezes. It is a peculiarity of this locality that the air is never dead or heavy; either the river sends through its rocky windings moist winds, or the endless terraces of mountain ranges goodly zephyrs. Everybody arose late and looked tired this morning. And no wonder—with the round of drills, reviews, examinations in rapid succession, hops and fireworks. The members of the graduating class alone seem indifferent to the test. They are so exuberant over their emancipation from the rigors of cadet life that nothing can tire or try them. It is not a little amusing to note the new ways of these invincible masters of diplomas. With the exception of matters pledged "on honor," they treat the regulations with quiet indifference. They walk in gray clothes, while the other classes dare not appear in other than the dress ordered; they smoke and saunter about at will, with all the sang froid of free civilians; in fact they are "different men" than they were a week or so ago. And yet, even at the "hops" at COZZENS', with champagne and other liquor plentifully displayed all around them, their cadet pledge of abstinence was honored as though they were picketed in by bayonets. Say what you may of the influences of West Point, this honoring of honor is as sacred as the holiest vow can be.

MOVEMENTS OF THE DAY.

The day has been one of monotony. In the morning the third and fourth classes were examined in tactics, Spanish and chemistry. But a few straggling spectators were present, and the proceedings were quite devoid of interest. This will be the case until the corps go into camp, which will be sometime during next week. Then the martial scene on the plains, where scores of tents will be pitched, will be exceedingly animating. One of the chief points of interest on that occasion is the probable release of the cadets under arrest for a midnight prank of firing off one of the cannon, and raising "Ned," about three weeks since. For that unlucky performance they have been confined to the barrack-yard, a most serious and mortifying punishment, which has chafed them to the quick, particularly because it debarred them from many of the privileges enjoyed by the others at this time, especially that of attending the hops. Some effort was made by sympathizing lady friends to work upon the heart of the urbane Superintendent, Gen. PITCHER, and induce him to remit the remainder of the sentence on graduation day. But the old hero is not susceptible where military scruples prevail, and so he declared that military law must and should be obeyed.

THE "PLEBES."

The "plebes," or new cadets, seem to have a hard time of it working in. They are worried in drill by the older fellows fearfully. "Dress up; dress up, there! Why don't you dress up!" shouts cadet to a green squad, standing fearfully out of line. One gawkish fellow, terrified and confused, taking the phrase as referring to his garments, in nervous agitation stretched his neck back and forth to examine how and where he was not "dressed up." "Confound you, Sir! dress up like the rest! Do you think I'm talking tailor slang to you? Dress up!" fairly yelled the disgusted and enraged cadet. Such are the dressings that the new appointees have to endure. "Why," exclaimed one of the cadets, "why, if we give it to these fellows mild in three weeks they'd be so rapid we could not manage them." They have been exercised in squads on the plains today, in the presence of a large number of sympathetic but highly amused spectators.

THE MESS ARRANGEMENTS.

Among other minor topics that are to be looked after by the Board of Visitors is the mess arrangements. There has always been more or less subdued complaint from the cadets about the manner in which their food has been dispensed to them and its quality. It seems to be a chronic trouble, of which they dare not speak out for fear of demerit for insubordination. It is rumored that the members of the Board have, as individuals, been probing into this trouble, making inquiries of the cadets, pledging them immunity from the consequences of free speech in the matter. A personal visit reveals the fact that a sufficiency of victuals is provided, and that it is cleanly and properly prepared. Tea and coffee are not as good as might be, for which there seems to be no excuse. The bread is excellent, and so is the meat, but the butter has not been faultless. Molasses and some small supplies might also be of better quality. As the cadets pay $24 a month for their board, it would seem that unexceptionable fare could be afforded them.

A DEDICATION.

This morning Mrs. GRANT, Miss NELLIE and others of their party were rowed over the river, in the little skiff Storm King, to Cold Spring, to attend the dedication ceremonies of the new "Grant Methodist Episcopal Church." An immense crowd of people were in attendance, it having been advertised that the President would be there. The edifice is of brick, very spacious, substantial and elegant, and is provided with stained glass windows and all the late improvements in heating and ventilation. Right Rev. Bishop JANES preached the sermon which was an exhortation from Romans 1 xvi: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." In the pulpit were the pastor, Rev. Mr. Ferguson, Rev. Elder Wakeley and Rev. Dr. Newman. In the altar were Rev. Messrs. Hunt, Foss, Birkens, Gibson, Lander, Ketchum, King, Stanford, Smith, Lewis, Ostrander, Terry, Messiter, Parsons, Harriway, Lounsbery and others. Remarks were made by Dr. NEWMAN, Elder WAKELY and others, and $9,000 were subscribed toward extinguishing the debt of $25,000. The entire cost of the church was $40,000. Mrs. GRANT and party were the guests of Hon. GOVERNOR KEMBLE.

SECRETARY BELKNAP AND THE VISITORS.

In the morning, Secretary BELKNAP and lady took the steamer Oliphant to Newburg. At his request there was no display of flags, &c., the trip being solely of an unofficial and social character. Newburg is the place of his former residence. Upon his arrival there, he was met by Messrs. Homer Ramsdell, Hon. J. G. Graham, Ex-Mayor Moore, Judge Taylor, Hons. Eli Hasbrouck and J. W. Miller, who escorted him around the city. He afterwaid dined at Mrs. DAVID CRAWFORD'S, and returned here on the steamer Drew at 3 o'clock. He will probably leave for Washington to-morrow. All the members of the Board of Visitors have departed. Gens. McDowell, Mienler, Schriver, Dent, and Murell remain. It is expected that Mrs. GRANT will continue here over Sunday, and it is possible that the President will be here either at the Alumni dinner to-morrow, or on Saturday.

The farewell battalion parade of the graduates is appointed for this evening. This formality sunders the last tie between them and the Academy. It is always an epoch in the military year, and is full of sad significance, both to those that depart, and those who remain. Inspector-General SCHRIVER is expected to assume command, and give a parting salute.

The Working Women's Protective Union —Annual Report.

The seventh annual report of the Working Women's Protective Union, No. 38 Bleecker-street, sets forth that during 1869, there were of first applications for work, 1,409; reapplication by same kind of persons, 7,198; total applications for work, 8,607; applications for information, 3,352; for legal protection, 335; by employers, 1,043; total of all applications, 13,337; employments supplied, 2,695; other applications supplied, 4,750; total applications supplied, 7,422; claims for unpaid wages collected and paid over, $1,610 80; claims rejected as unjust, $28 44; total of claims acted upon, $1,639 24; expenditures, salaries, rents, furniture, advertising, &c., $4,614 84; receipts, collections, donations, &c., $3,983 44. During 1870, so far, 1,712 applications have been supplied, $433 80 claims acted upon, $1,140 88 expended, and $1,647 46 received. Within the past seven years, the Union has prosecuted to final judgment more than 1,300 cases of fraud against working women, compelling the payment of over $5,000 wages due. Over 70,000 applications have been received during this period, and 30,000 and more acted upon. Domestic working women are not included in the operations, for they are supposed to have food and lodging wherever they are. The demand for an institution is shown more every year, the more widely it becomes known. The incorporators are Charles P. Daly, Jas. W. Gerard, John H. Parsons, Joseph P. Beach, Wm. Mackellar, Moses S. Beach, Daniel Walford, G. W. Matsell, Wm. R. Roberts, D. A. Kingsland and A. C. Kingsland.

CONGREGATIONALISM.

Conference at the Orange Valley Church —Henry Ward Beecher in New-Jersey.

The regular quarterly Conference of the Congregational Churches of New-York, New-Jersey and vicinity was held, yesterday afternoon and evening, in the Orange Valley Congregational Church, situated about five miles from Newark, on the line of the Morris and Essex Railroad. Each of the churches was represented by the pastor and six lay delegates, which, together with a number of persons of both sexes from New-York and the neighborhood of Orange, made an imposing concourse of about 1,000 persons. At 2½ o'clock the chimes attached to the church announced the hour for opening the Conference. Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER, Moderator, presided, at whose request the pastor of the Orange Valley Church, Rev. GEO. B. BACON, delivered the address of welcome. Rev. HENRY BELDON acted as Secretary. After the singing of a hymn, a prayer was offered by the Moderator. Mr. BEECHER then explained the nature and objects of the Conference. He called it a company of the brethren, made up of the churches within a certain radius, assembled together without any authority, and with no more ecclesiastical validity than any similar number of persons congregated in a private house to discuss religious matters. It is the duty of churches in a neighborhood to constitute good neighborhood, to enjoy each other's faces socially, and greet each other in the flesh. Reports of the condition and prospects of several churches were then given by their pastors, which were generally satisfactory, except the one at Fort Lee, which is likely to pass out of the hands of the congregation, owing to the imminent foreclosure of an existing mortgage, unless some relief is shortly afforded by sister churches. The first subject of discussion, "The Relation of the Church Edifice to Church Work," was then opened by Rev. Dr. STORRS, of the Pilgrims' Church, Brooklyn. The speaker traced the origin and architecture of early Christian churches. A Christian church was originally built after the model of the old Roman Bazillica, which served for the administration of justice as well as the management of commercial affairs. The ancient model consists simply of a raised platform at one end and side galleries. The speaker thought that every church edifice ought to have its religious physiognomy indicated that its character may be known by looking at it. A church ought to be permanent, for a permanent church contributes largely to the perpetuation of the church ministry. Dr. STORRS was of the opinion that the interior of a church ought to be arranged for the accommodation of Christian households rather than individuals, and hence the necessity of pews. He approved of chairs in churches for such as could not afford to rent pews. He preferred the permanent selling of pews, subject to a certain tax, as disposing of them by auction or renting them excited jealousy and rivalry.

The Moderator, Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER, next spoke. He was of the opinion that the question was divisible into two elements—firstly, the construction of the church, and secondly, the interior adaptations. Just as soon as a congregation can get out of a parlor or hall it ought to. It is not wise to build too big, but build so that you can build again. A church ought to be built that the pastor can effect the work upon the congregation which he is supposed to do. Ninety-nine out of every hundred churches are built to please the architect, and architects are the most godless creatures in the world. The three great essentials in a church are light, air and acoustic facilities. Mr. BEECHER was of the opinion that there is not a living man who knows how to ventilate a church with regard to church administration. He thought all plans relating to the management of pews were open to criticism. The system adopted in his church seemed to suit the nature and habits of the congregation, and so on with others. Concerning the subject of temperance, alluded to by the previous speaker, Mr. BEECHER maintained that the substituting of legislative for moral action would not or could not be effectual. At this stage of the proceedings a recess was taken till 5½ o'clock, in order to partake of a sumptuous collation provided by the congregation of the Orange Church, and spread beneath a spacious tent adjacent to the edifice. On reassembling in the evening a discussion was introduced on "The spirit of the Pilgrims in its adaptation to our times." In the absence of Rev. Dr. THOMPSON, of New-York, Rev. Mr. CLAPP opened the subject. The speaker wished to be like Mr. BEECHER and Dr. STORRS, true pilgrims of the nineteenth century. The first examples of the men of our time are to be found among the lineal descendants of the Pilgrim fathers. Their perfect ideas of the freedom and sublime dignity of the soul, led the fathers to love republicanism as a form of government, both in the Church and State. He ended by paying a tribute to the virtue, intelligence and genius of the people of New-England. Rev. Mr. STRIEBE followed. He ventured to say there were as many empty sleeves among the Puritans as any other class or sect in America. The negro, from his peculiar adaptation to religion, invites New-England missionary zeal. They should wage a moral war against the Southern politicians for the rescue of the negro from his degredation. The discussion was closed by Rev. Mr. BROWN, who gave a very interesting sketch of the history of the Pilgrims in New-Jersey. A motion was adopted that the next Conference be held in the Church of the Pilgrims, Brooklyn, and the proceedings came to a close in the usual manner.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

The sentences of criminals by Recorder HACKETT, in the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, included one of four years and six months in State Prison for JOHN HENNERSLY, guilty of having broken into the premises of ANNA GOFT, at No. 153 Avenue A; and one of six months in the Penitentiary for JAMES GALLAGHER, the perpetrator of a theft at the residence of WM. MCCLAIR, at No. 245 Eighth-avenue.

The Postmaster-General having accepted the proposition of the Cunard line to carry the English mails for the amount of the ocean postage on the mails conveyed, the following will be the order of departure and destination of the different European mails: On Tuesdays by steamers of the Hamburg line to Plymouth, England; Cherbourg, France, and Hamburg, Germany. On Wednesdays by the steamers of the Williams & Guion line to Queenstown and Liverpool. On Thursdays by the steamers of the Cunard line to Queenstown and Liverpool, and of the North-German Lloyd line to Bremen. On Saturdays by steamers of the North-German Lloyd line to Southampton and Bremen, and of the Inman Line, carrying the Irish mail only to Queenstown.

A meeting of the Southern Women's Bureau was held yesterday afternoon at the Cooper Institute, Mrs. C. FOWLER WELLS presiding, and Miss LAURA C. HOLLOWAY acting as Secretary, for the purpose of completing the organization. A constitution and by-laws were submitted and discussed, and will probably be adopted without amendment. A Committee of Communitees are appointed, and the Bureau will shortly be in regular working order.

Capt. ALBERTSON, who has had charge of the baggage department at Castle Garden for a number of years, has been removed by the Committee of the Commission and Senator MICHAEL NORTON has been appointed in his place. Other changes at the Garden are expected to take effect very soon. The change in the baggage department will probably cause the removal of about fifty employes, who will have to give place to others.

Counterfeiting United States money was made the foundation of a charge brought against GEORGE S. BROWNLEY yesterday, by a member of Col. WHITLEY'S force. The accused was arrested at the corner of Broadway and Duane-street, on Wednesday, and was found in possession of $3,000 in bad bills. It is said that he formerly held the position of Deputy United States Marshal at Nashville, Tenn.

LONG ISLAND.

The great excursion auction sale of Messrs. LAWRENCE, OAKLEY & FLEURY at Jamaica on Monday next (as advertised in another column) is attracting considerable attention. Jamaica, already a large and beautiful village, with cheap and frequent railroad communication with the Metropolis, is evidently destined to be a large city at no distant day. A prize of $5,000 is to be given to purchasers.

On Wednesday afternoon, as a well-known and prominent resident of Hempstead was about taking the train for home at Jamaica, he was accosted by a well-dressed gentleman, who said that he resided in Hempstead, but that he had been robbed and had no money, and asked as a favor that he would lend him enough to pay his fare, promising to reimburse him on his arrival home. He put confidence in the story, bought an extra ticket which he presented to the stranger and allowed him to relieve him of sundry bundles and an umbrella. The Hempstead gentleman saw nothing more of his new-found acquaintance, neither did he find $25 worth of purchases confided to his care.

The Committee having in charge the camp-ground recently purchased at Jamesport, met at that place on Monday, with the presiding Elder, and appointed the 23d day of August for the opening of the camp meeting. They will meet soon to lay out the grounds and offer the lots for sale.
